TAFT ISSUES THANKSG'VING PROCLAMAT'N

The season of the year has returned when in accordance with the reverent custom established by our forefathers, the people of the United States are wont to meet in their usual places of worship for a day of thanksgiving appointed by the civil magistrate to return thanks to God for the great mercies and benefits which they have enjoyed.

During this past year we have been highly blest: No great calamities, or flood or tempest or epidemic has befallen us. We have lived in quietness undisturbed by wars or rumors of wars. Peace and the plenty of bounteous crops and of great industrial production animate a cheerful and resolute people to all the renewed energies of beneficent industry and material and moral progress. It is altogether fitting that we should humbly and gratefully acknowledge the Divine source of these blessings.

Therefore, I hereby appoint Thursday the 25th day of November, as a day of general thanksgiving and I call upon the people on that day, laying aside the usual vocations, to repair to their churches and unite in appropriate services of praise and thanks to Almighty God.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington, this 15th day of November, in the year of our Lord, one thousand, nine hundred and nine, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and thirty-fourth.

By the President,
WILLIAM H. TAFT.

P. C. KNOX,
Secretary of State.

Kansas Is Flooded

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 16.—Many rivers and the smaller streams in eastern Kansas are high because of torrents of rain for the last few days. The small towns of Frankfort, Centralia, Violt and Vermillion are flooded and many residents sought shelter on the high lands last night.

T. J. MORGAN IS NO MORE

Thomas J. Morgan, of Wellston, who was widely known in Southern Ohio, died of paralysis Sunday evening, aged 62 years. He amassed a fortune as a coal operator, having been interested in the Wellston Coal Co., the Milton Coal Co., the Dayton Coal and Iron Co., and the Raleigh Coal & Coke Co. He recently built a beautiful home at Wellston. He will be buried Wednesday at 2 o'clock.

TOMMY BURT QUITS JOB

Tommy Burt, who off and on has been in the service of the Adams and Southern express companies for twenty-five years, on Tuesday gave up his position as driver. Tommy will devote his time to his local agency of the Gray motor boat engines.

HIT OVER HEAD WITH BOAT OAR

"Bunk" Boyd, a West End young man, was considerably used up in a general mixup that broke up a fishing party on the Ohio river Monday afternoon.

The trouble is said to have occurred above Wheelersburg and according to reports Boyd was brandishing a knife when "Skip" Fleetbroght felled him with a few raps across the head with an oar. Boyd has since been moving about with his head heavily bandaged.

Attorney Henry T. Beamon was a business visitor at Chillicothe Monday.

Cincinnati, Nov. 16.—After the adjournment of the grand jury yesterday afternoon at the session of which Charles Warriner, the Big Four defaulter was indicted for embezzlement, County Prosecutor Hunt and Detective George Ryan visited the apartment of Mrs. Ford-Stewart in the Sun building and were closeted with her for an hour or more, going over in detail the features of the case against Warriner, with the "woman in the case," who is to be the principal witness for the prosecution.

What disclosures were made by her during this conference could not be definitely ascertained, as both of the county officers and Mrs. Ford-Stewart declined to give out a statement, but it was learned last night from a person who is pretty close in touch with the authorities that a detailed statement of Cook's connection with the affair was placed at the disposal of the prosecutor's office and will be made use of when the proper time comes for his connection with Warriner to be established.

While the exact nature of this document and the letters connected with it could not be learned, Mr. Hunt in fact denying that such a statement was made, the authority for its existence is unquestioned, and it is believed that it will play a prominent part in the progress of the case.

Faint Trace Of Color.

After the departure of the officers of the law Mrs. Ford-Stewart consented to grant an interview to the newspaper men and they were ushered by Susie, the negro maid, into the little reception hall of the flat, where after a short interval Mrs. Stewart made her appearance. Much has been said since the opening of this case and since Mrs. Stewart's connection with it has become public knowledge, both about and against the woman, but be that as it may the newspaper men were surprised at her appearance when she entered the little room. Despite all that has been said against her she is beyond possible doubt a woman of refinement and good breeding and the lines of care and worry that have crept into her face during the trying and nerve-racking hours of the past few weeks of suffering have done but little to mar the finely carved features that are hers.

True, there is but a faint trace of the color that comes to one with her complexion. The long days of unaccustomed confinement in the darkened flat have left their pallor there, but the good looks, if not beauty, that were hers is apparent even now.

Dressed in an unbecoming black skirt and severely tailored waist that only served to heighten her pallor, the careworn lines and eyes that gave signs of recent weeping and many sleepless nights, Mrs. Stewart sighed and began her conversation.

"In the first place," she said, "I want to apologize to you and the other newspaper men for the unkind way I have treated you since this thing began; but you can see my nervous condition and know how I have been harassed. I really cannot stand any more."

"Will you make a statement, Mrs. Stewart, in regard to your connection with the Warriner case?"

"I cannot at this time."

"What was the nature of Mr. Hunt's visit this afternoon?"

"Mr. Hunt and Mr. Ryan were here to question me regarding the details."

"Details of what Mrs. Stewart?"

"Of my connection with this thing."

"What was the nature of your statements to him?"

"That I can not answer at this time. At the proper time I will give out what I have to say."

"What do you mean by the proper time?"

"When I am compelled to. Further than that I will not say at this time."

"Just what is Mr. Cooke's connection with this case?"

"That I will not answer at this time. I have talked with Mr. Hunt about that and I am not in a position to say anything more

Chosen As Life Members

Congressman Nicholas Longworth, Isaac L. Cox, professor of American history at the University of Cincinnati, and ex-Senator Edward A. Hafner all of Cincinnati, were elected life members of the Ohio Archaeological and Historical society, at a meeting held in Columbus. There are 200 life members.

Professor Cox was the leading speaker at the Major Belli memorial held here several weeks ago.

Sea Disast'r Disproven

Fort William, Ont., Nov. 16.—The freight steamer "Tonic" which was cleared from Fort William Sunday, is believed to have been wrecked near the passage of the island Monday morning and the crew of 20 lost.

Port Arthur, Ont., Nov. 16.—Officers of the steamer, Mapleton, here today, stated that they saw the missing steamer, Tonic in shelter at State island yesterday.

DEATH LST OF HOLOCAUST TO BE 330

OPENING OF THE SHAFT IS HERMETICALLY SEALED.—WOMEN IN DESPAIR.

Cherry, Nov. 1 .—Dawn today brought increased anxiety to the families of the three hundred miners who are still entombed in the St. Paul coal mine. Despite the belief expressed by the state and government officials that there is little or no possibility of any of the men ever being brought to the surface alive, scores of grief stricken wives early today gathered about the mouth of the hoisting shaft which late yesterday was closed down and sealed hermatically because of a renewal of the fire in the interior. The mine officials, assisted by the state and government authorities who remained on the premises all night, began early to ascertain whether it would be practicable to again send rescuers down the shaft. It was decided if the fire was sufficiently smothered a descent would be possible and no time would be lost. If the fire is still raging an effort will be made by pouring water and forcing carbonic acid gas into the pit to extinguish the blaze. With the smoke drifting into the remotest galleries of the mine for almost three days, the men must certainly have been suffocated, is the opinion expressed by the mining experts here. An organization of all charitable efforts into a centralized plan is proposed for a meeting called this morning. It is stated that unless a substantial sum of money is collected, great suffering will ensue among the thousand orphans and the two hundred or more widows left destitute by the men.

Cherry, Ill., Nov. 15.—That the 330 or more miners who were entombed in the St. Paul coal mine by last Saturday's disaster are dead, and that many bodies which

MRS. NANCE DID NOT ELOPE

Is Murder or Accident?

La Porte, Ind., Nov. 16.—Following the coming to the surface of Hudson Lake this morning, the body of Mrs. Hunter S. Dresden, wife of the owner of the New Carlisle hotel, Coroner Osborne began an exhaustive investigation into the circumstances surrounding the mysterious drowning of the woman who a month ago while in a boat with her husband disappeared, her husband being picked up floundering in the water. He said the boat had upset and was unable to save the life of his wife.

HOW M'NAMARA WAS ELECTED MAYOR

Local B. & O. S. W. trainmen read with considerable interest the story of Jim McNamara's election as mayor of the town of Zaleski but say the most important feature was overlooked. As the story goes Mack, who is the B. & O. S. W. agent at that point, wrote his name on the ballot and placed a mark before it and had his two operators to do likewise. The three votes cinched his election and henceforth its Mayor Mack.

Drove Around The Flag

R. E. Sutton, James Smith, Cecil Millar and Jesse Graham were among the autoists who took advantage of the ideal weather of Sunday to motor around "the flag." It is hardly to be expected that there will be another sabbath this year as beautiful as the last one.

File Answer In Partition Suit

In the partition suit of George W. Sargent against William Sargent and others, involving Bloom township property, answers and cross petitions have been filed by Attorneys Evans and Crawford, representing A. M. S. Dunn, a party defendant. This defendant claims an interest in the property individually and as administrator of the estate of the late Eliza beth Evans.

TO HOLD COURT SATURDAY

Judge Blair gave the attorneys notice Tuesday that he would be here to hold court Saturday and at that time would set the civil docket for the September term. It is likely that he will then order the petit jury empaneled, but all cases will be set far enough in advance not to seriously interfere with the hunting season.

Although the present term of court began on September 20 there have as yet been no jury cases heard. But few pending criminal cases will require a jury and the civil matters for a jury are equally as scarce.

It developed Tuesday that Mrs. Julia Nance who is reported to have deserted her husband and seven children at Lucasville and eloped with another man was in the city, and with no thought of going further.

It appears from a card received by The Times and from statements of friends that Mrs. Nance has been greatly wronged by published accounts of her sudden flight from home.

Mrs. Nance writes that her husband, Farmer Clell Nance was the real offender and that it was his misdeeds that drove her from her home. She left just in order to teach him a lesson, she having decided that he had gone the limit on last Thursday night. She wishes to remind him of what happened that night and then if he knows why she left him.

She emphatically denies that she eloped with one Bill Davis or that he was at the local N. & W. depot to meet her upon her arrival. And as for Davis purposely mashing a finger that he might quit work, she adds that it would be far better if some men would mash, not only the hands but their mouths as well. Mrs. Nance says that instead of eloping with any man she took a train for Gallipolis to visit a brother, who is in the Epileptic hospital there.

Mrs. Nance denies that she came to town house hunting with $6.00 in her pocketbook. She isn't certain whether or not she had six cents, and besides her husband was with her at the time. Nance knows, full well, she continues, why she left him and she expects to tell it all when the proper time comes.

Mrs. Nance says that she had no intention of leaving her children but merely wanted her husband to "sweat" for awhile. She is at the home of some friends in the city who sympathize with her in her present predicament. Mrs. Nance is a middle aged woman. Her maiden name was Petit. She accuses her husband of certain indiscretions that have finally caused her to make up her mind not to live with him again.

Sugar Trust Scandal to Be Probed

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16.—The sugar trust situation was under discussion at the cabinet meeting today. Attorney General Wickersham and Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh gave a detailed statement of the situation and explained that a rigid investigation into the frauds had really just begun.

MAY PIPE GAS TO SMALL TOWNS

Judge Osborn as representative of the U. S. Fuel Gas company, was before the county commissioners again Monday afternoon relative to the franchise to use roads of the county to pipe natural gas to the smaller towns. There were some changes agreed upon in the plans submitted by the company and the matter then went over until Friday. In the meantime the prosecutor will pass upon the legality of all provisions of the franchise.

Friday is also the date upon which the county officers must file with the commissioners their requirements for deputy and clerk hire for the ensuing year as provided by the salary law.

EVENING TIMES SPORTS

Jeff Started Life As Tank Builder

Jim Corbett never needed a Boswell; Bob Fitzsimmons was always able to talk for himself, and in these latter days we have champions who have written books; but if any man writes anything about Jim Jeffries, that man must gain his information from other sources than the big fellow himself.

Jim is just about as talkative as a pine knot; he never saw any good in a press agent, and it was only when he went into business after retirement that he learned the value of affability—and that word in connection with the big tank builder is a good joke in itself.

However, he did not win his fights with an affable disposition entirely, and it is a significant fact that every man who came to know Jim Jeffries well, valued his friendship highly and found him, at heart, a simple, kindly fellow, who assumed a brusque air to drive away the mosquitos who are always buzzing about the head of any one of a celebrity.

We have so often referred to Jeff as a boilermaker that most people believe that was his trade. As a matter of fact, he was a tank builder, and when crude oil was found in southern California and gangs of men were sent into the hills to build steel tanks, Jim was the advance guard.

In those days he worked for the Lacy Manufacturing Co. Jim was the kid of the gang in point of age, but he was the whale for size and development.

It was a well known fact that the men of his gang used to boast that they had a boy who could lift more iron or steel than any two men in the tank building business, and "Big Jeff," as he was called, helped drink it up afterward.

In spite of his great strength, the boy won many a dollar for his cronies—and was not given to showing it, though at least one tank gang will recall the time at Puente when "Big Jeff" lost his temper and "cleaned out the shack" in the most approved style.

He did not know anything about boxing, but he was a good willing slugger, and he would take a chance with any man who came along. If the other fellow happened to be too clever for Jeff, the boy would pick him up and hug him like a grizzly bear.

Jim Corbett was the champion of the world when "Big Jeff" first saw the inside of a gymnasium. Some of the wise boys in Los Angeles had seen the young giant and had an idea that he might be trained and shaped into something of a fighter. To this end they lured him into the gymnasium of the old Los Angeles Athletic club—an organization much interested in fights and fighters—and slipped a pair of gloves on his hands.

There is a fable to the effect that Jeff had a tryout against Hank Griffin, the mulatto trial horse. Hank had forgotten more about the game than the young man suspected, so the story runs and he gave Jeff a fine lacing for about fourteen rounds, cutting him unmercifully but never for an instant stopping him.

The fight ended when Jeff landed his first solid punch. At any rate, the big boy of the tank gang began to think about fighting for a living.

Jeffries and Long met in San Francisco on July 2, 1896. They were probably the two biggest men ever seen in a ring in the country up to that time.

Jeff didn't know a thing, but he was willing as a badger and he walked into Danny Long and knocked him down and out in two rounds. That was enough for Daniel. He quit the game, while the other strong boy went on to his championship. There were keen eyes in San Francisco, which marked the big tank builder and men who remembered him.

Jeff came back to Los Angeles more or less of a hero. He attended a fight in the old Athletic club. I remember that he wore an old fashioned black diagonal cutaway coat with long tails and tight fitting trousers of the same material. A heavy slouch hat was another important item of his makeup.

Some good natured wag had Jim introduced as "the coming heavyweight champion of the world," and the unfortunate youth squirmed under the ironical cheers. They tried to get him to make a speech, but he slowly heaved himself to his feet and stood there with his mouth open, twisting the black slouch hat in his big brown paws, the picture of embarrassment and dumb misery.

It was his first ovation and he has never learned to take one gracefully. That was when he was twenty-one years old.

FIGHT TO BE IN CALIFORNIA

New York, Nov. 16.—The tentative bids for the Jeffries-Johnson fight, which are expected to be considerably thinned out by December 1, include two offers from San Francisco, one from Los Angeles, two from the state of Washington, one from Idaho, one from Nevada, one from Oklahoma, one from Paris and one from Australia. As both Jeffries and Johnson have both expressed a preference for California, and it is doubtful if the fight can be held elsewhere in this country, it is considered more than probable that the big fight will go to Coffroth or to Gleason of San Francisco, or McCarey of Los Angeles. Jeffries is strongly opposed to fighting outside of this country.

The negro admirers of Jack Johnson in this city have contributed $3,000 toward a $10,000 fund which is to be bet that Jack beats Jeffries. They say they will take even money.

FOOTBALL

Eastern critics writing about the victory of Michigan over Penn admit a powerful scoring machine and a good booter in Allerdice. The defense of the Wolverines is considered as below par, compared with the other strength of the eleven. Poor defense is one of the weaknesses of a Yost system, strong enough at that.

Michigan travels to Minneapolis to play Minnesota next Saturday. If Yost can win from this eleven he can consider himself as coach of a successful football team. Gophers are strong and possess a rugged bowling machine, but Yost may yet come back strong enough to win out the one Notre Dame defeat.

Western Reserve wasn't so unfortunate, after all, at Annapolis, on Saturday. A 17 to 0 defeat at the hands of the Middies is a virtual victory for a team so badly shot to pieces as Reserve claimed to be. A safe prediction as to the score before the game started would have something like 50 to 0 in favor of the Navy.

HOT AIR TALK AT BARBER SHOP

Attaches and patrons of Sperry & Watters' barber shop for the past two days have been unwilling listeners to a never ending flow of hot air about the "flyers" at Latonia on Sunday last. Harold Paul, the dashing young fifth chair man of the shop, has been handing out the breezy stuff and the wonder is that he came to overlooked by Willard, Curtiss, Knabenshue and other aviators.

He should fit in nicely as a spieler for aeroplane or balloon flights. He has the fever right and though he does like to stretch things his friends predict that some day he will outshine the Wright Brothers, or any of the noted wizards of the air. Harold took a number of interesting snap shots Sunday but when developed they did not turn out exactly right and he is keenly disappointed.

McCoy to Train Jeffries

New York, Nov. 16.—Norman Selby, popularly known as Kid McCoy who arrived here a few days ago with an offer of $50,000 for the Jeffries Johnson fight if it be held in Paris, is now considering a proposition to help put Jeffries in condition for the battle.

McCoy, who is known as one of the fleetest footed and most scientific boxers of his time, has received an offer from Jeffries to remain with him as a boxing instructor and it is considered probable that he will accept.

Some of the Things Basket Ball Players Are Not Allowed to Do.

Now that the basket ball season is coming on the young athletes are earnestly devouring former records and acquainting themselves with this winter's rules.

Some of the points of basket ball which every amateur and beginner should know are given below. It is against the rules for a player to:

Section 1—Run with the ball.

Section 2—Kick the ball.

Section 3—Strike the ball with his fists.

Section 4—Hold, block, push or trip an opponent.

Section 5—Use unnecessary roughness.

Section 6—Intentionally delay the game.

Section 7—While making a free trial for goal, pass the ball to another player; an honest attempt must be made to cage it.

Section 8—Enter a scrimmage in which two men of opposite sides are playing the ball.

Section 9—Interfere with the ball or basket while the ball is on the edge of the basket.

Section 10—While making a free trial for goal, cross the foul line until the ball has entered or missed the basket.

MULLIN SHOWS CUBANS HOW

Havana, Nov. 16.—Before the greatest crowd that ever saw a baseball game on the island George Mullin made his Cuban debut and shut out the crack Almendares Club by a score of 4 to 0, easily outpitching Mendez, Cuba's greatest twirler. Only two men reached second and none got as far as third. Detroit playing an errorless game, the work of Mullany and Rush bordering on the phenomenal, bringing cheers from the holiday crowd.

BASE BALL

"Babe" Adams of the Pirates told an interviewer the other day he uses ten different forms of the curve ball. He's seems to be quite a kidder.

Efforts are being made by the Washington club to put a stop to the pitching of Walter Johnson out on the coast. He is the only Senator who looks like a real ball player, and they don't want to have him go stale next season.

Matty McIntyre, who is piloting the Detroit team in Cuba, is said to be booked for the alfalfa next season. He has been of little use to the Tigers for some years.

Eddie Collins of the Athletics declares that he is going to be the premier batsman of the American league next season.

Friends of John Dovey, owner of the Boston club, want him to engage Fred Lake to manage the Doves. Dovey is thinking it over.

Biss Hinchman, who once was a Red, seems to be on the ragged edge at Cleveland. If Art Krueger, another ex-Red, makes good with the Naps, Hinchman will be placed on the side and may land in Columbus.

Manager McGuire of the Cleveland says "nix" to the report that he is going to get rid of Catcher Clarke. He rather fancies "Nig."

The opposition to John Heydler for the presidency of the National league appears to be dwindling, and the chances now are that he will be elected.

Mexico will have a real baseball league next season made up of six cities. The new circuit comes in under the National agreement.

Matty McIntyre is billed for a shift to the minors, according to Detroit gossip.

President Hedges of the Browns wants a shorter schedule. He will vote for fewer regular games if the two big leagues will agree to play a series of inter-league contests.

YOST'S PERSEVERANCE IS REWARDED BY A VICTORY

FIELDING H. ("HURRY-UP") YOST.

A number of years ago, when new rules completely upset his calculations and he went down to two defeats before the hands of the Quakers. This year, however, he molded a team that is a wonder and his perseverance was rewarded yesterday by a complete and well earned victory over Penney.

Michigan had its wonderful "machine" football team, Coach Yost made a declaration that the West was superior to the East at football. The year following the rules were changed and Yost obtained an Eastern date with Pennsylvania. The

Yale & Harvard 2 Great Teams

New York, Nov. 16.—Though the year 1909 has not brought out the startling plays and great stars that have graced the gridiron in former years, it has developed two of the greatest teams in the history of the American game, and next Saturday's clash between Yale and Harvard at Cambridge promises to be one of the greatest ever played.

To the outsider Yale figures best on dope, and her eleven will rule favorite in the betting. But Yale undergraduates, coaches, and players are not so optimistic as the Yale adherents. Yale men admit that Harvard has been slow working into condition, but that the Crimson eleven of today can put up as game a battle as any Harvard team before it. Dartmouth played Princeton to a 6 to 6 tie. Harvard Saturday beat Dartmouth 12 to 3, while Yale was defeating Princeton, 17 to 0.

1 More Victim For Football

Washington, Nov. 16.—Football has claimed another victim in Archer Christian, the eighteen-year-old left half back of the University of Virginia team, whose injury in the game with Georgetown University yesterday was followed by his death at Georgetown hospital today. The body was taken to Richmond for burial. An autopsy showed that death was due to cerebral hemorrhage following concussion. Profoundly stirred by the fatality, the District Coroner has sworn a special jury of prominent citizens whose duty it will be to suggest, if possible, some modification of the rougher features of the game.

Virginia has canceled the remaining games of her schedule and disbanded her team. It was said today that Mrs. Christian always was fearful regarding the fate of her son, having had premonition that he would be injured. Though in Washington, she did not go to yesterday's game, but after it was over she telephoned to the hospital to ascertain whether her boy had been injured, and the news was conveyed to her.

How Bridwell Fooled Roger

"Roger Bresnahan, is one of the best fellows to work for that ever lived, but he is a little sensitive about his authority, and wants to have it recognized on all occasions," said Louie Evans, who plays with the St. Louis Cardinals.

"One day last summer when the Giants were playing in St. Louis, Roger got to first and made up his mind to steal second on the first ball pitched. As he came tearing into the base Bridwell said:

"Don't tire yourself out, Roger; that was a foul tip."

"Bresnahan accepted Bridwell's statement and started back for first only to be touched out for of course Bridwell was only kidding.

"As Roger started back behind the plate to put on his mask, for it was the third out, I passed him going to the outfield. We were all laughing at the play and I said 'That will cost you $10, Roger.'

"'Will it?' he snapped. 'Well, that remark will cost you $25.'

"'All right' I said, 'but your fine goes, just the same' and from that until the end of the game he was the maddest man in St. Louis.

"But he soon got over his anger and laughed about the play himself."

Billy Evans On Great Players

Since the close of the recent world's series, many articles have been printed as to who is the greatest ball player, Hans Wagner, Larry Lajoie or Ty Cobb. Likewise many an argument has taken place among the fans from coast to coast, over the relative merit of these three players.

It is indeed difficult to say which one of the three players in dispute is the game's greatest exponent. They are all great, and to do the trio justice, it would be best to say they are all the greatest in their own particular way

For years it has been an annual fad during the winter months to make comparisons between Lajoie and Wagner. This year Cobb has butted in on the deal. The men are so vastly different in their style, that a comparison that would be fair to all is well nigh impossible.

I have watched the trio in a number of league games, and paid close attention to the work of Cobb and Wagner in the recent series.

As to batting ability there is little to choose between Lajoie and Wagner. Their style at bat is entirely different. Lajoie assumes a position fairly close to the plate, while Wagner stands at the very rear and outside edge of the batter's box. Wagner swings in a rather awkward fashion, while Lajoie is grace personified.

As a fielder, I consider Lajoie far the more graceful, although the result of his work may be no more effective. Every chance is an easy one for him, no matter how difficult, while on the other hand, Wagner because of his peculiar awkward gait, makes easy chances look hard.

Only as a base runner is Wagner superior to Lajoie, but in that very necessary part of the modern game he has a big margin over the Frenchman. Wagner gets down to first in good style, but appears to be even faster after he reaches the initial sack. This no doubt is due to the fact that he has a faculty of outguessing opposing pitchers and catchers, and somehow always manages to take a daring lead off first base, is slow in comparison to the efforts of the wonderful Teuton.

While Cobb has not shown to advantage in the world's series, still year in and year out, his batting will compare very favorably with that of Wagner. Cobb probably gets down to first base faster than any man in the business, but after reaching first he is no faster than Wagner. Both players have a difficult fade-away slide that makes it very hard for a baseman to touch them. Often they reach a bag in safety, although the ball easily beats them there.

As an outfielder, Cobb is a finished artist, but it is out of the question to make a comparison of his work as a fielder with that of Wagner, as the Pirate star has many times more work to do than Cobb. The Detroit star has a grand throwing arm, and base runners seldom take liberties on a hit into his territory.

Believe me, fans, when I tell you that Cobb, Wagner and Lajoie are all great players, but speaking about the great player, don't overlook Mr. Tris Speaker, who plays centerfield for the Boston Americans.

Christy Mathewson, pitcher extraordinary, will vouch that he can hit some, while the New York Giants will testify to his fielding ability. Speaker was the one large factor in the victory of Boston over New York in the post-season series.

Frank Smith, the White Sox pitcher, is out with his annual growl that he can't get along with Comiskey and will not play for him another season. But when the springtime comes he will be on the same old job.

Manager Duffy of the White Sox, says there's no truth in the report that he has measured Lee Tannehill for a can. He expects to hold Lee for fielding purposes.

Jim McGuire has asked his players not to play winter ball.

Fortune For A Shortstop

The National and American leagues have purchased over $300,000 worth of talent from the smaller leagues for next season. Of this sum $299,550 has been paid and the balance is to go to the minor league clubs if certain men make good.

The American clubs have spent more money for new material than the National.

Charley Comiskey, of the Chicago White Sox, has spent more than any other owner, his purchases aggregating $55,650.

Blackburn, the Providence shortstop, cost Comiskey $8,000. Blackburn was the highest priced capture from the minors.

The Washington tailenders have spent only $2,500 for fresh material. Cincinnati has spent $36,800.

Col. Jno. Abbott Seriously Ill

Col. John Abbott, the veteran plasterer and sage of Springville Hill, lies in a precarious condition in one of the vacant Carson houses on Mill street.

John is suffering with a bad case of blood-poisoning resulting from running a splinter into his hand some days ago. He is without means and without anybody to take care of him and hardly a fit bed to rest upon. Kind hearted neighbors, although poor themselves, have been giving him some temporary relief but have finally acquainted the city authorities with the facts and the old fellow will probably be sent to a hospital or the infirmary. He has a sister at South Portsmouth but they have never been able to get along as they should and John has balked on going to her home.

JURY FREES SALMON OF MURDER

At Wayne, W. Va., the jury in the Salmon murder case reported at noon Saturday and brought in a verdict of not guilty.

John Salmon was indicted by the Wayne county grand jury at the last term of the circuit court of that county for the murder of John Smith, a companion. The indictment charged first degree murder. The killing occurred in a box car on the Big Sandy division of the Norfolk & Western railway. There were no eye witnesses to the deed, and the evidence against Salmon was purely circumstantial.

The contest was one of the most exciting that ever took place in the Wayne circuit court, the murder itself was one of the most sensational with which the county officials have ever had to deal.

The case went to the jury late in the afternoon. Several hours were spent in deliberation Friday night, but it was noon Saturday before the verdict was reached.

Smith was a young man, and Salmon, the man accused of his murder is but about 25 years of age. The murder occurred near Glen Hayes, early in April.

BURGLARS CARE ON GAY STREET

Police were called to the Horton home at No. 1028 Gay street Monday at midnight by a burglar scare. The officers found a rear door open. A search was made through the house but nothing found missing.

Best Bill of Season At Majestic Theater

Monster crowds were again the order at the Majestic theatre Monday day evening and the patrons were not disappointed in the announcement that more big city vaudeville was to be offered.

The good favor for the new bill started right at the jump, for Chas. P. Lowe, the Xylophone soloist who opens, has without question, the best single act seen here in vaudeville. He was with Sousa two seasons ago and the swing and dash he gives his act is reminiful of the great band leader. Prof. Lowe plays the excerpts from the standard overtures with all the ease of the lighter melodies, and he duplicates his skill upon the metallaphone. A passing tribute is due here to the Majestic's pianist, Roy Parks, who plays the accompaniments in the most acceptable manner.

The Midgleys in their rural sketch furnish wholesome amusement for those who enjoy comedy and Al. H. Wild is in truth a funny fellow. His particular force is mimicry and he kept his audiences in a constant roar.

Wells and Sells close the feature program with an acrobatic skit in which they spring all new stuff, along with their trick house. The Majestic patrons thought they witnessed the acme of humor and skill in the Trolley Car Trio, but here are two new comers who have the trio run into the siding, when it comes to a snappy act. The pictures as usual are clean and upto-date.

Here Is Another Bubble Item

The Times had an item Monday, about a mysterious bubbling up in Millbrook lake, north of and perhaps thirty feet from the turnpike. W. B. Grice has noticed the same phenomenon and also knows the cause of it. He says in 1858 or '59 a company of capitalists, in which were the late Wells A. Hutchins, Sr., L. C. and L. N. Robinson and one or two from abroad, conceived the idea of boring for oil in the valley of Munn's Run. It was at the time oil was discovered in Pennsylvania and the whole country was wild over it. Wells were sunk here, there and everywhere. Quite a number of wells were sunk in the valley of Munn's run from the county road to the divide. One of the wells was driven at the point where the bubbling is, now seen in the lake, and the old gas well is the cause of the bubbling. Oil was not struck in paying quantities when the well was driven, but enough gas came out of the opening to cause a good sized blaze when any one touched a lighted match to it. Mr. Grice remembers having seen the burning gas. The gas is still coming up and bubbles up through the waters of the lake. Of course there was no lake there when the well was sunk. It was in the low ground constituting the valley of Munn's Run, and when the dyke and spillway were constructed it backed up the waters of the run and covered the site of the abandoned well. The well was driven to the depth of between 800 and 900 feet. At that time the value of gas was not considered. Oil was what every one was after. Had they gone a few hundred feet further, till they struck the black shale, Portsmouth might today be burning her own natural gas and furnishing it to others. L. N. Robinson was still out for oil and went to Buena Vista and invested heavily in shale lands, without good returns. But he had a lot of fun and fun was "Newt" Robinson's long suit. This brought some of the Longworth family of Cincinnati to Scioto county, and some of their millions. The brilliant writer, W. J. Flagg, married a Longworth, and incidentally a slice of her money. His wife was a sister of son-in-law to Nick. Mr. Flagg was a visionary and knew more about writing novels than he did about making money. He used some of his wife's money to purchase a big slice of hill land around Buena Vista, attracted by the sight of shale and odor of oil. He built a log house on the hills overlooking the river, planed and varnished the logs on the outside and fitted up the inside with the elegance of a city home. He called it "Buck Horn Cottage." The oil didn't pan out, and the cottage was abandoned in the course of time. But the result was not altogether barren. It gave Mr. Flagg the inspiration for writing the best of all his famous novels, "A Good Investment." It was run in serial form in Harper's Magazine and printed and bound in book form and had an immense run on its merits as a well told story. The characters were mostly taken from real life, and people in this section had no difficulty in identifying them. The streets of Portsmouth, the Ohio river and landings, the Twin Creek hills and the morgan's Raid all cut a figure. And just think, the original oil well, that started it all, is still bubbling, right in the waters of the beautiful and highly cultivated park.

HAD NERVOUS SPELLS

STOMACH OUT OF ORDER AND GAS FORMED.

This Wisconsin Woman, After Two Years of Sickness, Was Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

There is absolutely no way of reaching the nerves with medicine except through the blood. The nerves receive all of their nourishment and support from the blood which, under healthful conditions, carries the elements needed to rebuild wasted nerve tissue. It is through the blood that all functional nerve troubles must be cured.

The case of Mrs. Herman Burdick, of Richland Center, Wis., shows how closely the nerves depend on the blood and is a good endorsement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a medicine which builds up both blood and nerves. She says:

"A few years ago I was generally run down and while in this condition I began to suffer from nervous spells. As they gradually became worse, I had severe pressing pains in the top of my head. The nervous attacks were accompanied by a high fever and it seemed as though I would go crazy. I always had to call a doctor when these spells came on me. My stomach was always disordered and gas formed on it. I was short of breath and so nervous that I could not sleep at all. At night I would be in misery. My appetite failed me and I grew weaker after each nervous spell. I was hardly able to do my housework.

"The doctors gave me only temporary relief and the last one who treated me said I was on the verge of nervous prostration. I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills after two years of sickness. I received benefit from a few boxes. They gave me good blood and perfect health. I shall always recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as they freed me from misery and torture."

The tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills by building up the blood so that it can nourish and strengthen the weakened nervous system has made hundreds of cures in the most severe disorders. This record of cures should merit a trial for the remedy which is guaranteed free from opiates.

Two new booklets, "Diseases of the Nervous System" and "What to Eat and How to Eat" are free on request. Send a postal for them today.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Your Thanksgiving Dinner Will Be Better If You Use One of Our Roasters

Thanksgiving is close at hand. Have you thought of your roaster? Don't waste time, temper and the best part of the roast by using an old and imperfect roaster when for a small sum you can get one from us that will do the work without any trouble or worry to you and will prepare your roast to a Queen's taste. We have two different makes and either one will serve you to perfection. In the SAVORY and LISK roasters we have the very best made. They are both guaranteed for several years and both do the roasting without any attention after the roast has been placed in the oven. Don't Think of spoiling an otherwise fine Thanksgiving dinner with a poor roast all because you are using an old and inefficient roaster. Let us show you how to have a fine roast, a fine dinner and at no worry to you.

Lisk's Sanitary Roasters $1.90, $2.15 and $2.40

These splendid roasters are made of enameled steel, are self-basting and sanitary. They cook meat, game and poultry economically and without wasting any of the natural juices. They save twenty per cent of any roast and make the toughest meat tender and nutritious. They bake bread beautifully, and are as easily cleaned as china. They are stamped seamless from one piece of steel and covered with three coats of LISK'S IMPERIAL GRAY ENAMEL. Every one is guaranteed for ten years. They come in three sizes at $1.90, $2.15 and $2.40.

Savory Roaster and Baker $1.50, $1.75 and $2.00

The SAVORY roasters are absolutely automatic for they need no attention after they are put in the oven. You can put your roast in the oven and go to church or go on about your work and the SAVORY will do the rest. In fact that is just what you must do for it must be left alone in its work. It is self basting, the natural juices of the meat or fowl collect in the concave bottom and are steamed through and through the roast. SAVORY roasters are seamless and perfectly smooth, so much easier to clean than most other makes. They are air tight, have no dampers and all the meaty flavors of the roast are retained. They are large enough for a 12 pound roast or a large chicken. They do their work quickly, perfectly and cannot burn for the bottom does not touch the oven. No water is needed, just put your roast in the pan, cover, place in hot oven and leave it alone till done. SAVORY ROASTERS dark enamel at $1.50 and $1.75. Gray enamel $1.75 and $2.00. We also have the SAVORY ROASTER in plain steel at $1.00, which is very popular seller.

STATE INSTITUTIONS.

We observe with much interest that there is an agitation radiating out from Columbus in favor of taking state institutions out of politics and also a righteous and most virtuous indignation at the thieving and scoundrelly propensities, in general, of the trustees, superintendents, stewards and other officials of the various charitable institutions of the state.

It is also a pleasure to note that our esteemed friends Col. James Faulkner, of the Cincinnati Enquirer and Col. E. S. Wilson of the Ohio State Journal have seized upon the new thought with both hands and are busily parading its virtues on the one hand, while on the other denouncing the crimson-dyed villians alleged to be exploiting the unfortunates and preying upon the tax payers. Col Wilson ought to have a valuable fund of first hand information stowed away in his brain for in the days when he was a young and innocent and impressionable editor of a country paper up and coming, he served as a trustee of the Gallipolis state hospital. Those must have been grand and glorious and graftless days for they still "point with pride" to the excellent Col. Wilson up at Gallipolis. If we mistake not, there is even a marble tablet plastered onto a building somewhere on the Hospital grounds as a sort of loving "In Memoriam" to let the unborn generations of epileptics know that Col. Wilson once was "on the job." And so, if Col. Wilson, with his intimate knowledge of affairs, has become convinced that institutions have fallen from the high estate they occupied when he frowned and fumed and protested (in vain) at the jobs that the pestiferous Lawrence county politicians persisted in capturing by the car load, he can be considered an authority. We admit his qualifications and will follow his views with interest.

We are inclined to the opinion however that Col. Faulkner is basing his convictions upon "hearsay evidence," when he joins hands with Col. Wilson in advising the people of the state to lock up their jewelry and get a shot gun every time the shadow of a man connected with a state institution looms up on the horizon If Col. Faulkner, for instance, had had the opportunities of Col Wilson and others of our noble newspaper profession, he would not have said all he did in Sunday's Enquirer in commenting upon the proposed state board of control plan. Thus Mr. Faulkner said:

"Governor Harmon's intention to ask for a State Board of Control to take charge of the public institutions will raise 64 kinds of Tophet in politico-commercial circles. When the late Governor Asa Bushnell tried to encompass Asa reform he came within an inch of losing his life, property and social standing. The present well-meaning Governor little recks of the consequences of his rash act. Apoplexy is already epidemic among members of the closely confined supply circles. The fellows that have become fat off the business of selling to stewards who don't understand arithmetic and to storekeepers who are crippled in the hand and cannot check bills are denouncing this "insidious leaning toward Socialism" that is appearing in our government. There may yet be mass meetings of protests in Massillon, Toledo, Gallipolis, Xenia, Dayton, Athens, Delaware, Lancaster and other cities near these distributing stations for the public moneys. It is settled that representatives of those threatened interests will be with the lawmakers this winter and will urge that this infamous proposition be consigned to the disgraceful oblivion that it deserves. Down with the wretch who stands between the pie and the pie-biters!"

Col. Faulkner would have known that the communities in most of the small cities he enumerates are more generally inclined to be foolish enough to take pride in the proper management of "their institution" than in anything else. He would have known that they cheerfully, intelligently and unselfishly do all they can to aid not only the "rascals" in charge, but also to bring a little more sunshine into the lives of the unfortunates who are being cared for. Why up at Gallipolis, for instance, the bare mention of such a word as "politico-commercial" no doubt sent half the town dictionary-wards in hurt amazement, and caused Editor Sibley to issue a hurry call for a special meeting of the Civic Club to consider the ins and outs of the terrifying phrase.

No, there won't be any mass meetings of protest at Gallipolis inspired by a "politico-commercial" view-point. There may be loud shouts for help however from a certain city built upon the Scioto, wherein both Col. Wilson and Col. Faulkner now do dwell and have their being. It may be their cries have already disturbed the dreams of Col. Faulkner, for they are a most noble, most lusty and most aggressive bunch—and their name is legion. In a purely commercial-politico sense, to reverse Col. Faulkner, the city of Columbus—mark the name—has had a lead-pipe mortgage upon state institutions for twenty years, and there may be mass meetings galore in the spacious parlors of the Columbus and Ohio clubs, if that strangle hold is threatened by the proposed board of control.

As an educator for such an earnest seeker in the vineyard of truth as Col. Faulkner, we suggest that Governor Harmon appoint him to the existing vacancy on the Gallipolis State Hospital board, that same noble board that gave Col. Wilson to the now fast-growing world of institution experts. If Col. Faulkner will only put his newspaper ear to the ground, we feel sure he will learn many marvelous facts about things both political and commercial—their origin and their devious ways, for underground news travels fast from institution to institution.

We also believe that his experiences will cause a man of the breadth and character of Mr. Faulkner to be a little more charitable in his expressions. For instance if he sees some officials and employes of institutions feel just as badly if anything goes wrong or harm comes to those in their charge, as if it were their own business or their own people, we think he would say so frankly and fearlessly.

The Enquirer is a great paper and Mr. Faulkner is a great newspaper man. We would like to see the latter on "the inside" and the former telling the people of Ohio about it.

P. S.—As to the advisability of taking institutions out of politics, there can be no two sides with any man who knows anything about them. They ought to be out, with capital letters. As to means of accomplishing the desired end, there is room for a wide divergence of opinion. We hope to give our own for what it is worth, before long and further comment upon the subject in general.

CHILDREN'S HOME.

There is one part of the report of visitors to the county and city institutions, published in today's issue that has long had the thoughtful consideration of a number of citizens that relating to the maintenance of the Children's Home, the advisability of abandoning it and the selling of the present Home property.

Dr. J. F. Davis, in letters to The Times some years ago advocated the same idea, giving facts and details showing the great expense of keeping up an institution for so few persons, when some other arrangement, equally satisfactory and much more economical, might be made. It was his idea that Scioto, Jackson, Pike and Lawrence counties go together and erect a Children's Home, to be managed by the counties jointly. He thought that in this way there would not only be a big saving to the tax payers of the counties, but also conditions generally would be bettered.

That the plan recommended by the board of visitors and advocated by Dr. Davis will come eventually, we have no doubt.

The other idea advanced, that of the city buying the Home property for a park, does not appeal to us so strongly. With building room so scant it would seem more an act of wisdom to plan a park system for the future, to include the beautiful hills and valleys in easy walking or car distance of the city. And especially, in view of the expenditures of city money to be made for a new water works and a new high school does it seem inopportune to spend a vast sum upon a costly park proposition, and one of doubtful utility at that—at least for the present generation.

WITHOUT STANDING.

A casual glance at any issue of the Portsmouth Blade will explain to the densest person why that paper has neither character nor standing and why its utterances command no respect. Take Monday night's issue for example. In one place it says George Schneider will not be appointed director of public service by Mayor Searcy, that Mr. Schneider deserves the place because without his support Mayor Searcy could not have been re-elected. In the same issue in another place it refers to Schneider as "a joke." A few days before election it attacked Mr. Schneidor bitterly when he had a runaway and said that what it termed his actions would defeat the whole Democratic ticket. On election day the Blade viciously abused Mr. Schneider.

Again, last Saturday The Times published what was the fact, that James Roach had resigned his position as a fireman and would be relieved Tuesday. Monday on one page of the Blade it was denied that Roach had quit and the statement made that The Times was doing his resigning for him—that Mr. Roach knew nothing about it. In another part of the paper it was proclaimed that Roach had resigned and would quit the service Tuesday!

Is it any wonder when such recklessness is manifest in almost every political utterance, such utter disregard for common consistency, that no credence is given the paper, for what it may have to say!

We are not surprised to hear that even the beloved Phile S. Clark is given to saying short and ugly words these days when the name of the Blade is mentioned in his hearing.

We notice in one of our esteemed exchanges a headline announcing that some unfortunate postmaster's head had "tumbled into the basket," meaning, of course, that the official had been bounced. What an opinion the gentle people of foreign lands must form of our manners and customs, if they read the head lines in some of our daily papers. In France the reader doubtless sees a gory human head falling into a basket containing other more or less gory heads, all deftly chopped off at the shoulders by a guillotine or snickersance. In England they doubtless conclude we are set of bloody, cut throats, "don't you know."

The latest intelligence from the New York horse show is to the effect that the horses are holding their own with society. Heretofore the horses have run a poor second to gowns, and diamonds, and furs and society giggle and gossip. This year it promises to be "horse and horse," or possibly "horse and monkey" with a chance that next year the horses will come into their own, and it will be a horse show and not a diamond show, or a show of bare arms. Give the "horses" a chance.

In the big cities they are to have stamped loaves of bread. In some of these large towns the bread has been stamped for a long time—stamped with disapproval.

Raise A Large Fund For War Against Socialism

New York, Nov. 16.—Rose Pastor Stokes, who was a cigar worker in Cleveland, O., before she married J. G. Phelps-Stokes, and who, with her husband, are working hard to advance the principles of Socialism, charged today that August Belmont, the American representative of the Rothschild billions, has contributed $50,000 to fight Socialism, while, she avers, the National Manufacturers' Association is considering spending $5,000,000 for the same purpose.

"Never has the world been ripe for Socialism," she declared today. "And never has the capitalistic classes feared the truth more. In every country of the world discontent is growing. This is the new rebellion—the rebellion that will be fought with the ballot if possible—as is our right it should be, but with the bullet, if necessary.

"America is probably more ripe than any country for the scientific socialistic movement. There is De Lara, imprisoned in Los Angeles, Fornando under jail sentence here for speaking the truth about the Czar of Mexico and in Spokane there are hundreds imprisoned because of their love for liberty.

"Rebellion it must be, or white slavery. The master classes of America cannot force the people, however, to violent action until every possible condition is right to aid in a complete victory for the working people. I cannot see we can win by the ballot alone, I wish I could. But the Federal courts are so blinded by capital that it is impossible for them to cope with present conditions."

ORDINANCE

NUMBER 1453.

DETERMINING TO PROCEED WITH THE IMPROVEMENT OF CHILLICOTHE STREET FROM THE NORTH SIDE OF ELEVENTH STREET TO THE NORTH SIDE OF FOURTEENTH STREET BY PAVING THE SAME.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH, STATE OF OHIO, THREE-FOURTHS OF ALL THE MEMBERS ELECTED THERETO CONCURRING AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1. That it is hereby determined to proceed with the improvement of Chillicothe Street from the north line of Eleventh Street to the North side of Fourteenth Street by grading, setting curbs and gutters, constructing the necessary drains and retaining walls, paving the roadway with vitrified or hard burned brick in accordance with the provisions of Resolution Number 2338, adopted August 1, 1906, and in accordance with plans, specifications, estimates and profiles heretofore approved, designated "C-C-57," and now on file in the office of the Board of Public Service.

Section 2. That all claims for damages resulting from said improvement shall be judicially inquired into after the completion of the proposed improvement.

Section 3. That the whole cost of said improvement, less one-fiftieth thereof, and the cost of street and alley intersections shall be assessed by the foot frontage upon all the lots and lands abounding and abutting upon said proposed improvement; and the cost of said improvement shall include the expense of the preliminary and other surveys, of printing and publishing the notices, resolutions and ordinances required, the advertising of said notices, the cost of construction, together with interest on bonds issued in anticipation of the collection of deferred installments of assessment, and all other necessary expenditure. That the assessments so to be levied shall be paid in ten annual installments with interest on deferred payments at the rate of four per cent per annum, provided that the owner of any property assessed may, at his option, pay such assessment in cash within thirty days after the passage of the assessing ordinance, in which case said cash assessment shall not include any item of interest upon bonds to be issued in anticipation of the collection of deferred installments of assessment. That bonds of the City of Portsmouth, State of Ohio, shall be issued in anticipation of the collection of assessments by installments and in an amount equal thereto. That the remainder of the entire cost of said improvement not especially assessed, including the cost of intersections, together with the cost of real estate or interest therein purchased or appropriated, and the cost and expense of any appropriating proceedings therefor, and the damages awarded any owner of adjoining lands and interest thereon, and the cost and expense of any suit or proceeds of the sale of bonds to be issued by said City for such purposes in the manner provided by law.

Section 4. That the following lots and lands shall be assessed for said improvement, as above determined, to-wit: All lots and lands abounding and abutting upon said proposed improvement on Chillicothe Street from the North side of Eleventh Street to the North side of Fourteenth Street.

Section 5. That the Board of Public Service be and it is hereby authorized and directed to make and execute a contract for said improvement with the lowest and best bidder after advertisement according to law.

Section 6. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after the earliest period allowed by law.

Passed October 20, 1909.

FRANK MOORE, President.
Attest: FILMORE MUSSER, Clerk.

More hunters were in the fields Monday than on any other previous opening day in many years according to reports from different localities.

The vicinity of Lucasville seemed particularly sought by the nimrods for Adolph Gloekner alone counted fifteen different parties during his day's wanderings through the briars.

Judging from reports the first day's hunting was most satisfactory. Ralph Calvert perhaps is entitled to the honors for he got the limit although he confined his hunting to the river bank above the city. Alex Gloekner, who never misses the opening day, got the limit and two rabbits on the Infirmary farm. His partner, Will Tritscheller, did nearly as well and they got back to town by 10 a. m., too.

Jimmy McMahon came back in the evening with but 11 birds, but is hopeful of doing better his next time out. Earl Calhoun and J. P. Cranston, Jr., did exceptionally well near Wheelersburg. Adolph Glockner bagged 11 birds on the Cook place near Lucasville and went out to Clifford again on Tuesday.

Dick Milison proved an exception for he came back from the West Side empty handed. His experience confirms the statements that many quail had been killed out of season in that locality. He had received a line on a number of good coveys but found all had been killed off before the season opened and throughout the day Dick did not see a single bird.

Druggist Frank Amann is hunting near Clifford. Frank James and his dogs struck out for the West Side Tuesday afternoon. Mail Carrier John Ault is spending his vacation chasing the festive Bob White. J. W. Herman of the street railway, is spending a few days in the same way. Joe Seidell has gone to South Webster to show up the hunters in that section. Dave Tipton and Joe Hoskins have invaded the West Side and Clerk Harry Carpenter at the Biggs is hiring every dray and moving van in town to meet them at the bridge. Dolph Frederick is impatiently nursing a pet boil on his shooting arm and is forced to sit at home and take his hunting out in thinking.

The opening day of the season was a fairly good one for John Sudenfeld and party down at Lawshe. They found both birds and rabbits plentiful down in the land of "pennyroil" and expect to do some great shooting during their stay.

Charley Huels and Joe Allbright, Jr., members of the party got lost and wandered around the briar fields until late in the night before getting their bearings sufficiently to find their way back to their boarding house. The party bagged 15 birds and an even dozen cotton-tails.

Dr. F. M. Edwards and Attorney Cecil Millar left Monday for a week's outing at Millersport. These dead shots will play havoc with the birds and rabbits in that vicinity

Dan Flannigan, clerk at Weber's shoe store, and Will McElmurray of Jackson avenue, returned home Monday night from a day's hunt on the farm of James Thompson on Pine Creek. The boys got a nice haul of birds and rabbits.

Vernon Davidson, of Anderson Bros.' shoe department, spent Monday down on the West Side, hunting. He did not come back empty handed either.

P. H. Harsha left Tuesday for Harshaville to spend the week hunting. It's sure death to the birds when Howard takes to the field with gun and dogs.

Even Squire John W. Byron has caught the fever, and has taken down the old muzzle gun from its pegs and took to the corn stubble in search of birds. Squire left for the old farm Sunday evening. Word from him is to the effect that he is making a great killing. He will return Thursday to reopen his court.

J. F. Amberg, East Ninth street groceryman, has abandoned the routine of his business for a few days shoot. He is hunting down on the Cincinnati division of the N. & W. and expects to get the limit for each day he is out.

J. N. Davis, a clerk in the dry goods department of Anderson Bros.' store spent Tuesday out on his farm near Oakhill getting his'n among the quail and rabbits that infest that locality.

Ed Moeller, East Ninth street butcher, hied himself to the fields with the tap of the bell Monday to slaughter the quail and rabbits.

Will Henson, a Portsmouth Brewery driver, left Monday on his annual hunt along the Portsmouth branch of the B. & O. S. W.

Barber Dick Milison took a run over to the vicinity of his old West Side home Monday to kill all quail in sight.

Bert Henry, a former Portsmouth barber, came down from Columbus Sunday to spend a week hunting in the vicinity of Lucasville.

Roy Lynn and Ed Appel went to Clifford for a day's quail hunt Monday.

Ralph Calvert and his fine pair of hunting dogs followed the river banks bright and early Monday and stirred up several good coveys.

Leo Sommer went 'possum hunting out on Carey's Run Saturday night. He struck a good but that's all.

R. H. Ruthmeyer, of Cincinnati, arrived here Sunday to spend the week hunting with Alex and Adolph Gloekner, to whom he is distantly related.

Thomas Yeager, Jr., is temporarily filling the place of Chas. McCormick at the Star shoe store while the latter is bagging quail at Buena Vista.

George Hasselman, clerk at Stahler's hardware store, expects to spend next week hunting up in Ross county.

Victor Howland, the extra man of the East End fire company, went hunting Monday down about Sardinia. The boys say he took four hundred shells, and they are looking for a car load of game.

CHILDREN DIDN'T GET COLD ALL WINTER

Mother Says "Father John's Medicine Kept Them Stout and Healty"

Marie and Harry Jones.

"Every fall, my children would get a cold, and it would last all winter. I did not dare take them outdoors. Last winter, my sister recommended Father John's Medicine and I used two bottles, and my children didn't get cold all winter. They grew stout and hearty. Would recommend Father John's for anybody. My children's names are Harry and Marie Jones." (Signed) Mrs. John Jones, Yohoghany, Pa.

CURES REMOVE DOUBT ABOUT ECZEMA CURE

Read What Your Druggist Says About Oil of Wintergreen Compound.

Druggists Fisher & Streich submit the following to the readers of The Times.

For several years we have announced, with our recommendation, that we had found a positive cure for eczema; a simple skin wash, oil of wintergreen compounded with other healing ingredients.

Yet we know there are people right in this town who have eczema, and still have never tried this remedy.

We have, therefore, arranged with the D. D. D. Laboratories of Chicago for a special offer of a trial bottle at 25 cents instead of the $1.00 bottle as regularly sold.

We offer this trial bottle with our recommendation and assurance that just as soon as the patient washes his itching skin, this mild liquid will take the itch away instantly.

VIRGIL CORMUTE SHOT IN EYE

While out hunting with A. C. Frowine and Vernon Purdy, near Harrisonville, early Tuesday, Virgil Cormute, well known street car motorman, was accidentally hit in the eye by stray shot.

Mr. Cormute was hurried to town in Mr. Frowine's automobile and his injured eye attended to by Dr. Marshall. The latter said the eye ball was just bruised and the injury not serious.

Mr. Cormute lost sight of his companions and suddenly coming up a bank near where they were got in range. All are thankful that he escaped as luckily as he did.

Hunter Defends Ducky Holmes

In Jack Ryder's column of Tuesday's Enquirer appeared the following:

Fred C. Hunter who played for Ducky Holmes in the Western league, and is now running a pool and billiard room in Chillicothe comes to Ducky's defense in no uncertain style. He writes: "I read the account about Ducky Holmes and the Western league magnates and the way they handed it to him. Of course, it's natural for people to holler about certain managers, and Ducky Holmes certainly was popular in the Western league because he was fighting and had his ball club do the same. After he found out that the magnates were clicking on him he told his ball club to fight and win anyway. Buck Conley got sore at Holmes for nothing and Holmes was his best friend. After Holmes had his trouble with the fans he was in bad with a few bad managers. What I want to say is that Ducky Holmes did the right thing, but at the wrong time and place. He is the grandest fellow to work for I ever drew a salary from and knows more about running a base ball club than all the managers in the Western league, so any time anybody goes to knocking Ducky Holmes in Ohio, I am there to battle for him. In case he should take hold of any club in either major league you can bet that he would have them all on their toes and fighting for something to the finish. If Ducky Holmes would go to the commission it couldn't keep him out of the pennant in the Western league, but he always said he wouldn't win by protested games and never put in a protest all season. In conclusion I will say I am in deep sorrow over the misfortune to Charles Dexter, having played with him, and he was a chum of mine, and like a brother to me. It was impossible for me to attend the funeral or I would have been there."

Hunter played with Dexter, whose real name was Schoenherger on the Portsmouth semi-professional team back in 1903. Geo Andres of this city, is captain of the Sioux City team mentioned in Hunter's letter above set out.

STRUCK OVER THE HEAD WITH BUCKET OF OYSTERS

Who is the pretty woman who had a bucket of raw oysters dashed over her head on East Gallia street, Monday evening, much to the delight of a large crowd of men who had collected in front of the Freund drug store?

It seems that the woman, who was accompanied by a well dressed man, entered a grocery store, she determined to buy fish, while he was equally determined to purchase oysters. He triumphed, and when the sidewalk was reached, she berated him in stellar fashion. He could not stand for a "cussing" in public, and struck her over her pretty bonnet with the bucket of oysters. Of course it "busted" and she resembled a mermaid who had taken a bath near Baltimore, where oysters grew and thrive. She cried like a child and he darted up Offnere street and was soon lost to view.

Fountains In Cincinnati

Mayor Searey is much elated over the agitation going on among various councilmen in the city of Cincinnati, over the installation of many drinking fountains, similar in every respect to the ones in Portsmouth. Portsmouth, by the way, is a pretty good town to pattern after in many things.

Injustice Done Woman

A grave injustice was done Mrs. Florence Davis, Monday evening when The Times stated that a complaint had been made to the police that she had trouble with her neighbors. Mrs. Davis, who is a respected resident of West Third street, did take a certain woman to task for berating her son, but did it in a lady-like manner. She was considerably hurt over the item, which, doubtless originated in the brain of a busy body.

RVING DREW CO. TO STABLISH BRANCH FACTORY AT JACKSON

That the Irving Drew company is figuring on establishing its proposed branch shoe factory in Jackson, is shown by an item which appeared in Monday's Ironton Register as follows:

"The Hon. Edwin Jones, mayor of the city of Jackson, iron king and coal magnate, also very favorably mentioned as a candidate for governor, was here Monday. He was accompanied by Mr. Ed James, department dairy and food commissioner, also of Jackson. They came here to see Congressman Johnson, but particularly to look over the branch shoe factory of the Excelsior company, as Mr. Jones has a proposition from the Irving Drew company of Portsmouth to establish a branch in his city. Mr. D. C. Davies piloted them through the factory here and gave them all the pointers he could, connected with the plant from its inception to the present time. Both gentlemen were well pleased, expressing surprise at the number of persons employed and particularly well pleased that so many young women were at work for it is this class he hopes to provide employment for, should the contract mentioned be consummated, as there is right now a surplus of this class at labor in Jackson and of the very best quality too.

"Incidently we asked Mr. Jones about his experience as a mayor, knowing he would be free to talk upon that subject as he retires the first of January. He said: Really I do not believe the salary of that office could be placed at a figure that would induce me to accept it again. Why people call you out of bed at daylight to tell you that a poisoned dog is dead in front of their home and to please come and take it away, or at a late hour of night they call up to say that their pet dog has been stolen and to please find him for me as soon as possible. It is a common thing with us to fry men arrested for being intoxicated after 11 o'clock at night so they could go home to their family and not remain in jail all night. No not for me, one term as mayor of a municipality is all I want.

"The salary at Jackson is $400 and fees. The office pays about $1200. Wellston not so much. For next year, the salary at Wellston will be still less as it has been reduced.

"Of course all of Mr. Jones' friends know he accepted the office, not for the money but for the good and welfare of his home town. He is known to be an inveterate worker, averaging as he does, having so many business interests and they are so large, and so diversified, over sixteen hours of actual work out of every twenty-four. He has to all appearances, a strong physique but if he can keep up the pace he is now going, for many years, he will be an exception to the rule. Mr. Jones says political affairs in Jackson county are in good shape, perfectly satisfactory to him and he hopes and expects to keep them in this condition for the future. The gentlemen left for home by the D. T. & I. at 4 o'clock.

The Times called up W. W. Gates, superintendent of the Irving Drew Co., and learned from that gentleman that the company had made a proposition to the officials of Jackson relatives to the establishing of a branch plant in that city. Mr. Gates also stated that Huntington was after the factory, but as yet the matter was in such a state that he could give no definite answer as to which city would get the plant.

It has been known for some time that the Irving Drew Company, had been considering the advisability of establishing branch factories. The company has had its eye on Manchester also, and it would occasion no surprise should they start a small plant at that place.

NURSE RETURNS TO PANAMA

Miss Ada M. Lammers has returned to her duties as a professional nurse at Panama and should be at her destination by this time. Her work is for the government, the nurses assisting the doctors and surgeons in the treatment of all those in government employ. This does not include the laborers on the canal. They are cared for by another department. Miss Lammers was at the banquet tendered to Secretary (now president) Taft on his visit to Panama. She likes her life and surroundings, and says there are enough Americans and families there to make life highly enjoyable socially. Miss Lammers graduated from Grant hospital, Columbus, as a nurse, passed the civil service examination and was sent for by the government when nurses were needed in Panama. The hospital with which she is connected accommodates one thousand patients.

VOTE CAST FOR MEMBERS OF SCHOOLBOARD

At Monday night's meeting of the board of education, its clerk, Will Hazelbeck presented the official abstract of the votes cast in the school board election this fall. The figures were practically the same as given in The Times the following day. Each of the two larger parties elected two members, Messrs. Albert Graf and J. S. Hudson, Democrats and Dr. W. D. Trumper and J. C. Milner, Republicans. The vote was ordered placed upon the clerk's minutes. The official totals by parties was as follows:

Democrats: J. I. Hudson, 1553; Albert Graf, 1534; George J. Schmidt, 1203; G. Wash Williams, 976.

Republicans: W. D. Trumper, 1604; John C. Milner, 1514; J. F. Menke, 1343; George E. Kugelman, 1284.

Prohibition: J. D. Herron, 466; E. J. Meacham, 458; C. J. Kerr, 276; T. J. Curry, 247.

Socialists: Emma Bagby, 311; George Mooney, 252; John Stout, 177; Ona Palmer, 128.

INDIANS HUSBAND MAKES COMPLAINT

A debonair and well dressed Englishman who introduced himself as the husband of the Indian Princess, Prairie Flower, dropped into police headquarters Monday evening.

The Englishman told a story of threats, personal abuse and constant annoyance to which he had been subjected to by "Doll" McGraw, a local character. He said that McGraw had a personal grudge against him and had tried every conceivable plan to lead him into a personal encounter with him. He would arm himself with a pistol and a knife and parade up and down before his boat which is moored near the upper Ferry landing or get others to invite him out that he might get a chance at him. He said that McGraw had even started slanderous stories about him and wife in order to provoke them into a fight. Chief Davidson promised to investigate the complaint.

HEINISCH'S HORSE DESERVES A MEDAL

George Heinisch has a horse, that has done duty hauling a delivery wagon for seventeen years without missing a day except on Sundays. The horse is of English thoroughbred, and was brought here in a job lot of animals that a man was carting around the country and offering for sale for any price he could get for them. Mr. Heinisch picked out a colt paying about thirty-five or possibly forty dollars for it. He considered it a candidate for the dump but concluded he wouldn't be out much, and being a good hearted man Mr Heinisch was pleased with the idea of being able to give the horse, that seemed down on his luck, a few square meals and descent burial. The horse picked up right away under good treatment. He was kind and intelligent, showing plainly that he was of good birth and in his colthood had been in good hands. And here he is yet, after seventeen years of service evidently good for seventeen more. Mr. Heinisch thinks he must have gotten into the trader's job lot by mistake. He is certainly a thoroughbred and probably at one time belonged to some English nobleman. He knows more than most drivers, knows the whistles of trains, can distinguish church bells, and if Mr. Heinisch wasn't a Presbyterian deacon he would be willing to bet the horse can tell the time of day by a clock. Charley Heinisch says the horse can keep books, but Charley hasn't joined church yet. It is certainly some horse, and Mr. Heinisch wouldn't trade him for a farm. Another thing about him that proves his good blood. He has never become "stove up" from driving on the paved streets. And right here is as good a place as any to say that Mr. Heinisch don't take on any particular airs on account of the horse not being stove up. He is an unbeliever in the stoving up theory. He says you can drive a horse till kingdom come, however long that is, on a paved street and he will be no worse off than if he had been driven on a dirt road all his life.

A JEALOUS WIFEY

Chicago, Nov. 16.—"If all the woes of jealous wives were as groundless as those of the pretty creature who came into my studio this afternoon there'd be a big shrinkage in the divorce court business," said Frank Scott Clark yesterday. "I was at work here when the door flung wide and a breathless vision in black, pretty and young and very flushed, came rushing in.

"'I've something I want to show you,' she said, 'the picture of a young woman, a rather pretty woman, and I want you to tell me who she is.

"'Why, how should I know?' I answered.

"'You ought to know because you took the picture—your name is on it,' she said, her breath coming faster all the while and her cheeks flushing more deeply.

"'Yes, but even so, you are a stranger to me and I do not know what your purpose might be in wanting to discover the identity of the woman. It would not be quite the thing for me to tell you who the girl is even if I were very sure,' I answered. But I must confess my curiosity was aroused as to who the woman was, to cause my pretty visitor such palpitations so I asked to see the photo.

"She drew it from her shopping bag and as she uncovered it asked me pleadingly not to keep the truth from her.

"'If you don't tell me some one will, for I must know who this woman is—she is the woman who is coming between me and my husband.'

"'Mercy, how do you know that?' I asked, as she held the picture up to view. 'Because,' she answered, her voice trembling with emotion, 'I found it in his coat pocket—on the side next to his heart. Heaven only knows how long he's had it there.'

"'Not long,' I assured her, as the fun of the whole little farce-tragedy swept over me, 'not long, because the Free Press only gave those pictures away last week and about 3000 other Detroit men and women have that same photo of Mary Mannering.'

"Well, my visitor sunk into the nearest chair trying to make up her mind whether to laugh or to cry. Happily for me she chose the first and I'll bet you Mary Mannering herself never made a prettier stage picture than did that relieved little woman as she sat back laughing at her own groundless jealousy."

DAMAGE CASE AGAINST N&W

At Chillicothe Monday was begun the case of Dorothy Work vs The Norfolk & Western Railroad Company, a suit for damages which the plaintiff claims as a result of alleged obstructing of Paint Creek by the railroad company's bridge below the city. The following jury was selected to try the case: Walter Haney, George Stanhope, John Knoch, John A. Purdum, Orley Bookwalter, Norris Reeob, David Dillon, Merritt Cox, W. A. Noth, George Lautenklus, George L. Doersam and Nelson Purdum.

The jury were taken to view the premises, after which the taking of the evidence began. The plaintiff is represented by F. P. Hinton, while H. W. Woodrow and H. T. Bannon, of Portsmouth, are taking care of the railroad's interests.

Doerr Bros.' force of stogie makers are enjoying a brief layoff.

Attorney Opha Moore returned from Cincinnati Monday.

MILL STREET HOME IS SURELY HAUNTED

Mill street is haunted!

Ghosts walk there by night!..

Especially is this true at 19 Mill street, the home of George Nixon.

It may be that some one is trying to mentally assassinate Nixon, and he is shaking in his shoes for fear the days of Salem witch-craft have invaded his fireside.

A ghost, so the teacher used to explain, wore a long white gown, minus the sheath effect. But this particular ghost don't wear any gown at all—just a great big, firey eyed, black-as-night cat, fully four feet long, and balls of fire in its forehead. Oh, it's a cat and a half, and when Sol Hughes and George Monk (notice the surnames of the latter) saw the varmit climbing up the sides of the Nixon house, Monday night, their hair fairly riz on their heads while cold beads of perspiration stood out all over them. They were scared half to death, to hear them tell it and declare that that cat crawled up the weather board with an abandonment that would put "Steeple Jack" to shame. The cat, a monster in size, came from nowhere and "shinned" up the side of the Nixon home with the ease and grace of a toe dancer. When it got to the top, it hopped on the tip of the brick chimney, and omitted a noise that the men declare was a cross between the twill of a screach owl and the bark of a fox.

The two Georges almost shook the soles off their shoes. They trembled with that "awe" feeling and when one of them got hold of his voice, he managed to awaken the sole tenant of the home, George Nixon. George came down and behold, he saw that cat. He shook like one with the ague and thereupon declared that he was not surprised. He knew all along that the house was haunted, but this was the first time that he ever saw the haunter. He declares that for several nights he has been hearing strange noises, something in the nature of a gang plank striking the bosom of the Ohio river. He took it as a sign from heaven warning his son to mend his ways, and he has been terribly wrought up over it. He says that he is not particularly fond of ghosts, the cat kind, especially, and is going to set a "bar" trap to capture the varmit.

He had refrained from apprising his neighbors of the fact that his home was haunted for fear they would think he had been receiving packages from Chillicothe, but when two such reliable and truthful men as George Munk and Sol Hughes declare they saw the spirit in the shape of a cat, then it is time that he make a statement.

Now, it has been learned, that Nixon knows something about ghosts. Once he was traveling through Bath county, Ky., and he noticed a light in the distance. Not wishing to be mistaken for a night rider he approached the house with caution, and was surprised to learn that the house was an abandoned one. He concluded to spend the night there, and bravely walked into the back door. No sooner had he entered the house than a light began to dance over his head. He tried to "shoo" it away but instead of "shooing" it followed him fully a mile, and it sure went some to keep up with him, for he declares he traveled at a pace that would put Strang, the auto driver, in the shade.

He didn't say what brand he had been up against at that time, but he declares on Monday night when that cat "shinned" the weather-boarding he was as sober as a temperance judge, and in his right mind from cerebum to cerebellum. He fairly believes that his home is haunted and it would occasion no surprise to see a "for rent" sign in Nixon's window most any day.

NYES BIKE RECOVERED

The Tribune bicycle which some Mill street women fished out of the river Monday evening proved to be the property of Druggist Win Nye. The bike had been stolen from the rack in front of the store. Little credence is given to the report that a boy had been seen riding down the grade at terrific speed and then suddenly disappeared.

WOMAN'S NIGHTMARE

No woman can be happy without children; it is her nature to love them as much so as it is the beautiful and pure. The ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass is so full of dread that the thought fills her with apprehension. There is no necessity for the reproduction of life to be either very painful or dangerous. The use of Mother's Friend prepares the system for the coming event, and it is passed without any danger. This remedy is applied externally, and has carried thousands of women through the crisis with but little suffering.

TEN REASONS WHY

You Can Consult Dr. Snell With Confidence.

1. For many years he has made regular visits to this community and has established a permanent practice.
2. He limits his practice to Chronic Diseases and has spent his life in the study and treatment of same.
3. By making regular monthly visits to Portsmouth he sees and becomes familiar with a large number of rare and difficult cases.
4. By seeing his patients once a month he can treat a much greater number of people than would be possible if he saw his patients daily or weekly.
5. His practice consists of difficult cases, fully nine-tenths of whom have failed to secure satisfactory results elsewhere.
6. At least three-fourths of his patients are sent to him by former patrons.
7. If he thinks he cannot benefit you he will say so.
8. He will spare no effort or expense on his part to cure you.
9. His charges are fair and reasonable.
10. Consultation and examination are confidential.

What To Do For a Cough

Here is a home-made remedy that overcomes an obstinate cough quicker than any costly medicine you could buy. Any woman can easily make it in five minutes.

Or.

Granulated Sugar Syrup..13 1-2
Pinex 2 1-2

Put the Pinex in a clean pint bottle and fill it up with the syrup, made as follows: Take a pint of Granulated Sugar, add one-half pint of warm water and stir for about two minutes. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours. It tastes pleasant—children like it.

This simple medicine is also splendid for colds, whooping cough, bronchitis, incipient consumption, chest pains, etc.

Pinex, as you probably know, is the most potent form of Norway White Pine Compound. It is rich in all the well known pine elements. None of the weaker pine preparations compare with the real Pinex itself. Your druggist has it or will gladly get it for you.

The full pint of this effective cough syrup can be made for 54 cents. It keeps perfectly, and lasts a whole family a long time.

Strained honey can be used instead of the syrup, and makes a very fine honey and pine tar cough syrup.

N. W. BRAKEMAN INJURED IN FALL

Nicholas De Lotelle, a well known N. & W. brakeman was the victim of a most peculiar accident near Batavia on the Cincinnati division, Monday night and in which he had a miraculous escape from death.

The accident happened at the Duck Wall trestle a mile west of Batavia about 9 o'clock last night.

The train, an extra westbound on which De Lotelle was the rear brakeman had broke into at that point and Nick was flagging the rear end.

He stationed himself on the trestle, when all of a sudden, a cut of cars which had broken loose from the train, began to roll back towards the bridge. The flagman realizing his perilous position there not being space enough on the bridge for him to get in the clear, swung himself over the ends of the ties, holding with his hands, thereby saving himself from being run down and ground to pieces.

"However, fate was against the nervy brakeman as in his haste he left his signal lamp sitting in the track and which was struck by the cut of cars, knocking the lantern out a straight line to the end of the very timber, from which he was hanging suspended by his hands. The kick on the fingers was a terrific one and caused him to loosen his hold and fall to the Creek bed below, a distance of 15 feet.

Fortunately he slighted in a bed of gravel or else he would have likely been killed in the fall, as it is he suffered a dislocated shoulder, and both arms broken. It is not thought he is injured internally.

The injured man's call for help bought the train crew to his rescue. The injured man was placed aboard a passenger train, No. 24, and taken to Batavia for medical treatment and was later taken to a Cincinnati hospital.

De Lotelle, resides with his mother Mrs. Christian Lotelle at 208 East Ninth street, this city.

MURDER CASE PUT OFF

At Huntington by mutual agreement of counsel the case of Earl E. Dudding, which was called for trial in the criminal court Monday was continued until the January term of court. After consultation between the attorneys and the court the case was set down for the first Tuesday after the adjournment of the grand jury, February 1. The grand jury convenes on the fourth Monday in January, and a full week is given for its deliberations.

After the continuance had been arranged Dudding's bondsmen appeared in open court and renewed their surety for his appearance. Statements made in the court room were to the effect that Dudding's health is extremely poor and that his strength would have been greatly taxed by the physical effort to which he would have been put had his case been brought to trial.

Dudding is under indictment for first degree murder as the result of his shooting and mortally wounding his uncle, Ira S. Chapman, a C. & O. supervisor, on the morning of September 6th. Both men have relatives in Portsmouth

Miss Flora Kettner of Covington, Ky., is visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson of Market street.

MRS. FORD

at this time. That will all come out at the proper time."

"This 'other woman,' has she any direct interest in the affair?"

"You will pardon me but please do not ask me to discuss her."

The interview was here interrupted by the advent of Jeanette, Mrs. Stewart's beautiful little girl who was believed to have been removed to Chicago last week but who has been under the care of Mrs. Stewart's cousin.

Glad To Be Home.

The golden haired youngster was delighted to be home again, and went into raptures of joy in the arms of Susie, who entertained her with tales of new toys bought for her by her mother.

The coming of the youngster, together with Mrs. Stewart's more than evident fatigue and worry, and her unfeigned desire to be with her child, put an end to the interview.

"I trust you will excuse me. I do not wish to say anything more at this time. When the time arrives for me to make any further statements I will remember you all," said Mrs. Stewart as she graciously showed the reporters to the door and bowed them out with an unsuppressed sigh of relief at their departure.

Taking everything into consideration, the much talked of "woman in the case," although showing many signs of her great stress of mind and mental anguish, is bearing up very well. With the constant jangling of the telephone bell, the calls from the speaking tube, requests for interviews, conferences with officers of the law, added to the continued confinement and the mental strain she is under, it is remarkable that the woman is able to retain her faculties.

When seen later in the afternoon and asked regarding his interview with Mrs. Ford-Stewart, Prosecutor Hunt declined to make any definite statement. "I am not in a position at the present moment to make a public statement of the case," he said. "I had a long talk with Mrs. Stewart and went over a great many phases of the case with her, but cannot at this time make known anything that will be of any great interest." Mrs. Stewart is a very shrewd woman, and, while she no doubt knows a great deal, I am not at this time ready to talk of it. There are one or two features that I do not care to discuss at this time."

Mrs. Ford, it is said, seems to have a genuine fear of a man whose name has been mentioned in connection with the case. While at the court house to testify before the grand jury Monday she declared to the court officers that she was afraid he was in the city and might be "after her." During the short trip through the corridors from the prosecutor's office to the court house she clung to the arm of assistant Prosecutor Weinig, who acted as her escort to the automobile in which she was taken home.

"Look, that's him," she declared several times when men were met in the hall. Only the assurance of Weinig that the man was not the one she feared could induce her to proceed. When she reached the automobile she was almost hysterical from fright. She would not say why she feared the man, further than "I know he is after me." Her first attack of hysterics was immediately after she had been before the grand jury. She broke down completely and had to be assisted into Prosecutor Hunt's private office, where her maid Martha, applied smelling salts and other restoratives, while a deputy was despatched for brandy.

Mrs. Stewart, in speaking of her experience before the grand jury said: "I told nothing beyond what has already been made known. I was asked several questions which were quite unexpected but I replied to all of them as best I could. There were some things which I do not think should be made known at this time, but I wish to repeat my statement that I have nothing whatever to conceal."

Mrs. Stewart told of the persecutions which she has suffered in her flat. Strangers have attempted to force or scheme their way into the place at all hours of the day and night, but she has admitted none of them. She has received one application through the mail for a position as her private secretary.

WARDEN JONES HAS NEURALGIA

Warden T. H. B. Jones of the penitentiary suffered much Sunday from neuralgia, superinduced by an aching tooth, says the Columbus Journal. For the last three weeks the warden has been receiving treatment for his teeth, and they have been giving him much pain. The aching was so severe yesterday that he was forced to remain in bed most of the day.

MIN CLIFFORD AND HIS TWO COMPLAINTS

Min Clifford was a caller at police headquarters Monday evening. Min came to get acquainted with the new chief. Once he had introduced himself he warmed right up to the official and after delivering himself of some caustic remarks on past police chiefs of Portsmouth explained the real purpose of his visit. He had sickness at his home on Mill street and boys were constantly annoying and disturbing the patients. He desired that the practice should be stopped. Min was about to take his departure when he suddenly remembered that there was one more favor he wished to ask. He wanted the police to make a certain Slabtown soft drink parlor man quit allowing his sixteen year old boy to while away all of his time and spend all of his money foolishly in the place. Min was assured that both complaints would be promptly attended to.

It was decided to perfect the organization of Pyramid No. 1 at a meeting to be held Monday night and prospects are bright for a big charter membership.

George S. Hall of Columbus, the founder of the order is its supreme general manager. B. Frank Vincent, of this city, is the supreme president; Eugene E. Knox, supreme scribe; Albert Marting, supreme treasurer; Fred L. Woodbridge of Newark, supreme organizer, and Jos. T. Mickelthwait, supreme counsellor. James Byles has been appointed local organizer.

N. & W. Man Goes To the Hospita

J. H. Price of Winston-Salem, N. C., who has been employed on the N. & W. construction work at Waverly, was brought to Hempstead hospital in a serious condition Monday night.

Price, from the meager details obtainable was hurt while on a work train. He has sustained severe injuries to his head and back and was in a semi-conscious state upon his arrival here.

The injured man had been attended by Dr. Andre at Waverly, but was met here by Dr. Halderman, who removed him to the hospital in Lynn's ambulance. He had a fairly good night and was resting much easier, Tuesday morning.

TO SELECT MEN FOR HILL TOP DEPARTMENT

Several officials met at the Seventh street engine house Monday evening for an informal discussion of the needs of the new Hill top fire engine hiuse.

The officials seemed to favor a combination hose and ladder wagon such as is used in many of the larger cities and the use of the steamer, George Davis, now stationed in the East End engine house with a new engine for the latter place. It was the opinion of all that it will take eight men to run the hill top department or as many as compose the East End Fire company, the number including the watchman.

The officials are already receiving applications for positions in the hill top company and a list will be selected before very long.

Five Big Acts At Orpheum Theater

Five dandy acts make up a big city vaudeville show at the Orpheum for the first half of the present week. Each turn is entertaining and in the judgment of those who attended the opening performance Monday night, the opportunity is presented to patrons of the popular theatre to witness a bill whose merit has not been equalled in this city for a long time.

Frint, Gage and company, a trio presenting a laughable farce entitled "The Haunted House," are the headliners in furnishing amusement on this merry bill. Their sketch is replete with funny situations, the absurdity of which kept the audience in an uproar from start to finish.

The Variety Trio, in a newsboy sketch, have a good turn and are capable entertainers. Singing, dancing and clean comedy comprise the act.

Makiro and company entertained their audiences highly with their cleverness along this line. There is enough new stuff worked in with the customary stock tricks of the magician to make their act thoroughly enjoyable.

The character impersonations of Lon Glick are pleasing. His recitation of the Italian baseball player was especially good and won for him a well deserved hand from his audience.

Baby Knight, a youthful singer, who has a voice of wide range and strength is the fifth number of this unusually excellent program. He made quite a hit with his impersonation of a little school maid.

Motion pictures close the bill.

PARISIAN MODEL CORSETS, unlike others, are built on the lines of custom made corsets. They are fitted to your figure from individual measurements taken in your own home. Perfect fit and absolute satisfaction are assured. Note the four styles shown. There is a charm in every line—exclusiveness in every model. Every Parisian Model Corset is guaranteed. You get satisfactory wear or a new corset.

Parisian Model CORSETS

are especially cut to fit with ease, grace and comfort, conforming to the refined, natural lines of the typical American woman. Every model is designed for a special figure and carries with it individuality, beauty and grace. Without a properly fitting corset you cannot dress in becoming style.

A Parisian Model Corset selected by an expert Corsetiere, fitted to your figure from home taken measurements will prove a revelation in corset comfort. To show your figure to its best advantage—to insure individuality and that self-satisfaction of being becomingly gowned—you must be properly corseted.

MINE HORROR

lie buried beneath thousands of tons of earth may never be recovered was the opinion expressed tonight when rescue work, carried on night and day for forty-eight hours, was temporarily suspended.

Fires in the mine, which broke out with renewed fierceness early in the day, made further descents by rescuers impossible.

Fans employed in an effort to carry fresh air down to the imprisoned men served only to enliven some sparks, which sprang into a flame.

Soon the heat and smoke became so dense that it was necessary again to seal up the mouth of the hoisting shaft and tonight the men down there, whatever their condition, are locked in as effectively as in a dungeon.

300 Coffins Are Ordered.

Whether the bodies will be taken out tomorrow or not for several weeks will depend upon the condition of the internal fire.

It is possible that steam and chemicals producing a carbonic acid gas will be forced through pipes to the bottom of the mine tomorrow.

These will have a tendency to choke out the flames.

It was learned that 300 coffins have been ordered—half of them to arrive tomorrow and half the following day. Meantime the several score of nurses who have been rushed here look forward to no prospect of heroic work in reviving injured and half suffocated men.

It is confidently believed there will be no one brought out of the mine alive.

Hope swung frequently in the balance today.

Before the fire broke out again rescuers descended four times.

Hopeful Rumor Was Heard.

Then the rumor circulated quickly through the crowds that the men below ground had been reached and that the reason they were not brought up immediately was that they were exhausted by lack of food and smoke.

"They're alive; they're alive!" cried hopeful mothers and wives. "They'll be brought up pretty soon."

But the truth was far different. The rescuers did on one occasion go down 300 feet to the bottom of the hoisting shaft. Then groping their way with electric lamps and kept alive by oxygen stored in their helmets, they penetrated 150 feet into the bottom gallery. But none of the miners either dead or alive, were found.

"Are you there!" called out the rescuers cheerily, but nothing was heard in response.

Crowd Leaves As Hope Wanes.

It was conjectured the miners had crawled for safety into the recesses, remote from the fire, but to these parts the rescuers were unable to go without reascending. Before they could reascend the fire had broken out.

Gradually the crowd about the mouth of the shaft began to thin as hope seemed to wane.

The spectacle about the mouth of the wrecked mine at dusk was pathetic.

A tall skeleton framework of iron reaching skyward, surrounded by a group of low wooden buildings, which a few days ago had been the scene of industry, suggested by its desolation that hope had been abandoned.

Only a half dozen guards patrolled the premises.

Silent Women Looked On.

In the distance scattered over the field here and there a few women wrapped in shawls looked on in silence. As a result of the disaster there are in this town of only a few thousand people at least 1000 orphans and 200 widows.

These are the figures of Duncan McDonald of Springfield, Ill., president of District 12, United Mineworkers, who instituted a roll-call of the families of the entombed miners.

Mr. McDonald early abandoned hope that any miners would be brought up alive.

President Farling of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad declined to commit himself as to the fate of the men. "The men are just as safe now as they were yesterday at this time," he said.

"The mine is too big and has too many ramifications to be filled with smoke yet. Besides the smoke is not being carried downward by any air currents. If the men were alive yesterday every man may be alive now."

256 Miners Are Missing.

Mr. Earling caused a house-to-house canvass of the miners to be made. This showed 256 miners missing, but some of the families were not at home and it is believed when a complete list is obtained the number of entombed men will exceed three hundred.

Cherry, Nov. 16.—The temperature taken at the top of shaft of the burning mine this morning registered 108 degrees Fahrenheit, which indicated the fire below is so intense that it will probably be impossible to break the sealed shaft today.

Cherry, Nov. 16.—With the arrival of fire apparatus from Chicago at noon work of fighting the fire in mine began. A water spray was towed into the shaft in the hope to cool it. If this was successful, the investigators would enter the mine. A struggling line of women cashed the pay checks issued by the mine company today. Funds were distributed to keep the people from immediate want.

MAKING MAP OF COUNTIES AND STATE

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 16. The contract for making the plates for the new state road map which the legislature authorized the state highway commissioner to make has been let to the Terry Engraving company of Columbus, and the work is now in progress. Proofs of a dozen or more counties have been submitted to the commissioner and approved. The printing will be done by the Springfield Publishing company under its contract with the state and that part of the work will go forward rapidly when the plates are completed.

Each county is made on a separate plate and will occupy a page in the atlas which the work will constitute. The pages will be if such dimensions as will admit of the insertion of the atlas in an ordinary auto or carriage case, so that tourists will find it convenient to carry them.

The first edition will show the maps without color, everything being in outline, but later on it is possible that maps in colors may be issued. The Terry company has agreed to preserve the negatives used in the work very carefully, so that if the legislature decides to issue a color map, it can be put out at little expense.

Except in the vicinity of large cities where the roads run close together, the forthcoming maps will show all highways quite distinctly.

SCHOOL BOARD HELD ADJOURNED SESSION

An adjourned meeting was held by the board of education Monday evening to finish transacting the business that was left over at Friday night's regular meeting.

Satisfactory adjustment has been made with the different insurance companies with which the board carries insurance for the protection of its property and claims for damages from the fire that occurred in the high school building last summer have been made good. The sum received by the board from insurance companies on account of this fire is to the amount of $570.49.

Members Streich, Dover, Scudder, Tremper, Marting and Haas were on hand at roll call. President Haas took the chair.

The tedious work of reading the abstract of the votes cast for the members of the board of education at the recent city election was completed by the clerk. The returns were found to coincide with the tabulation published in The Times on the day following the election. Accompanying the abstract of the returns was a resolution of the board of electors confirming the election to the board of education of J. L. Hudson and Albert Graf, democrats, and Judge J. C. Milner and W. D. Tremper, republicans, with the request that copies of the resolution be sent to the new members, who are to take up the duties of their offices the first of January.

As Mr. Tremper is a re-elected member of the board and is now serving a term, it was thought altogether fitting by his colleagues that he give them a little speech showing his sentiments on his re-election. This he did, with his usual charm and grace of manner.

The financal statement for the month ending Nov. 1st was read by the clerk and approved by the board.

Superintendent Appel's report for the month showed an enrollment of 3041 pupils in the public schools. The average of attendance was 93.7, and which is considered fair. The percentage of excused and tardy pupils and the rate of corporal punishment was low, according to the superintendent's report.

Member Dever made a motion that the schools of the city be closed from Wednesday night, Nov. 24th, until the following Monday for the Thanksgiving vacation. The motion was adopted and was followed by adjournment.

News And Gossip From The Capitol

Columbus, Nov. 10.—William E. Haswell, of Bucyrus, is now chief examiner of stationery engineers. He succeeded William E. Kennedy, of Cincinnati, who has been in that office since September 25, 1903, at which time he was appointed by Governor George K. Nash, to succeed George M. Collier, of Cleveland, removed for irregularities. On Monday afternoon, Mr. Kennedy went to the governor's office and tendered his resignation. Governor Harmon requested this, not because there had been anything wrong but because he wanted a democrat in the office. Immediately after the resignation was filed Haswell was appointed. He must have known what was coming because he was in the Governor's office when Kennedy came with his resignation.

Haswell was a deputy examiner in the office for six years, but was let out a year ago last May when the board was made a partisan one. It is probable that he will reorganize the office completely. There are 14 subordinate places, namely, assistant chief, who receives a salary of $1800; ten district examiners, each receiving a salary of $1500; and three clerks, two at $1200 and one at $1050. The salary of the chief examiner is $3000.

Kennedy received his appointment in an unusual way. He bought an early edition of one of the Cincinnati afternoon papers which carried a Columbus special which told about Collier's removal by the governor for malfeasance in office. "I want that job" said Kennedy to himself. He made a bee line for George B. Cox's office. Cox called up Governor Nash over the 'phone and Kennedy was ordered to report at Columbus the next morning. Before nightfall he was on the job. He has made a good record as an official and had the engineers' law so amended that it would stand the test of the courts. He has two offers from business firms, but has not decided what he will do. He may engage in business himself in Cincinnati. Both Kennedy and Haswell are well known in the state. Haswell made a record for efficiency as a deputy examiner.

The students at Ohio university, Athens, are a very docile, polite set of young men. They do none of the rude things in evidence at other colleges. As for playing football, baseball and indulging in cane rushes, hazin gand class scraps, why mercy no, they would not think of engaging in any such vulgar acts. About the most exciting thing that could happen would be for a student to get slapped on the wrist for doing something unkind. And pink teas are said to be popular there. All this is indicated by the annual report of President Alston Ellis, who, as usual takes a full out of the other universities which include manly sports in their curriculum. It has been said that the reason why the able president has such an antipathy for sports of all kinds is that his college is never able to win when it goes up against other institutions in athletic contests. Mr. Ellis' reports always furnish the newspapers with something readable and the one as filed last Monday with Governor Harmon is no exception.

J. C. Wood, for many years a deputy in the state accounting bureau, who is well known to county officials all over the state, is dead at his home at Leonardsburg, Delaware county of intestinal trouble. Last March he submitted to an operation which afforded but temporary relief.

The Columbus board of land appraisers expects to adopt the New York city unit system of land appraisement. It is based on the size of a lot which is in the center of a square. The lots within the outlined zone are valued on the basis of the unit lot, the graduations made enabling the assessor to get pretty close to an equality in appraisement.

Chif Mine Inspector Harrison has gone to Cherry, Ill., to observe conditions at the mine there where several hundred persons lost their lives. Governor Harmon directed him to go. The governor tendered the use of the entire Ohio mining department for service at the mine, if needed.

VIRGIL JONES SOME PRESS AGENT

In addition to his growing skill as a magician, Virgil Jones, local performer is getting on well as a press agent. Listen to this notice found on the front page of the Ashland Independent where Prof. Jones appears in the Christian church on Tuesday night.

A brief description if a few of Mr. Jones' experiments in modern magic.

Lovely roses are made to bloom at his will, hundreds of the tropical beauties appear neath manipulations of his magic wand. Live rabbits come forth from a borrowed hat and yards of ribbon are whirled from it to the time of music. Taking a bunch of heavy solid silver rings he links them altogether and seperates them at will. A handkerchief held in his hand instantly multiplies into three, a red, white and blue, then he closes the feat by changing them into old glory. And thus for a seeming endless time he gives one a glimpse of fairyland, presented in a manner which cannot fail to delight and mystify the most cultured audience.

Mr. Jones will give an entertainment in the Christian church in this city tomorrow, Tuesday night.

SAGE AND SULPHUR

Made Her look Twenty Years Younger

READ MRS. HERRICK'S SWORN STATEMENT

STATE OF NEW YORK } ss. Rochester, N. Y.
County of Monroe }

Nancy A. Herrick, being duly sworn, deposes and says: When I was a school girl I had a head of heavy, long, dark brown hair, that was so plentiful, rich and glossy, that it was the envy of many of my young schoolmates, and attracted the attention and remarks of strangers. After I was married and as I grew older, my hair commenced to come out just a little at first, but gradually as time passed it came out more and more, and began to turn gray. I was induced by many good reports heard of Sage and Sulphur, to try a bottle. My hair was quite gray and thin on top when I commenced using Sage and Sulphur, and you may imagine my satisfaction when I found that it was fast coming back to its natural condition, becoming thicker, darker, smoother and glossier than it had been for a long time. I continued the use of Sage and Sulphur and my hair is now in a splendid condition, as heavy and as dark and smooth as when I was a girl of sixteen. From my experience I believe it is one's own fault if they lose their hair, or let it get gray or harsh. It is now four years since I commenced using Sage and Sulphur, and still use it, and my hair still keeps thick, dark, smooth and glossy.

Sworn to before me this 19th day of July, 1907.

SHARP COMMENT BY BOARD OF VISITORS

WANT A PARK OF HOME PLACE

The board of visitors of the Scioto county penal and charitable institutions recently made an inspection of the same and on Monday submitted a report of conditions to Probate Judge Beatty.

In connection with their report the board of visitors made some interesting comments, principally upon the liquor question and upon the advisability of disposing of the Children's Home property.

The report follows in full:

Portsmouth, O., Nov. 15, 1909.

To the Probate Judge of Scioto County, Ohio:

The Scioto County Board of Visitors, through their committees, have recently inspected the county and city charitable and penal institutions.

The infirmary and children's home were both found in excellent condition. Inmates as well cared for and enjoying far more if the comforts of life, than they likely had, previous to their having become public charges, except in isolated cases, that may have lived at some former time in comfort or even luxury.

There were but thirty-one (31) inmates in the infirmary and twenty-two (22) at the Children's home where there has been times in the past as many as one hundred (100) in the former and seventy-five (75) in the latter institution, and that, too, when the population of our county and, especially of our city was not nearly as large as at present.

This certainly shows more independence among the more or less unfortunate poor in keeping out and helping their friends to keep out of charitable institutions, or they are more prosperous and better able to take care of themselves and help to take care of those that might have a natural claim on them for such help.

We think we are beginning to feel the beneficial influence of abolishing the "open saloon" from our city and county.

The Children's home is at quite an expense to take care of a few children. Especially so, when the value of the property is taken into account, about seven (7) acres beautifully located in a very desirable part of the city.

As a business proposition the county could likely dispose of the property for enough money, so that the income from it would approximately keep the present inmates in the home of some adjoining county, and without cost to Scioto county tax payers and to the advantage of the home, that might take them, owing to their heavy fixed expense on account of having a larger equipment than they have need of, and same as Scioto county now has.

The property is becoming less desirable for a Children's home, as the city grows up around it, making it more urgent to secure a place with more suitable environments, as well as from an economical standpoint.

Would it not be economical for the tax payers of Scioto county to sell that property? And, the city of Portsmouth confer a blessing on future generations by buying it for park purposes and preserving the ancient earthworks.

The city station house is in good condition. We were informed by the turnkey that arrests are becoming less frequent.

The jail is as disreputable as ever and the only satisfaction we can get out of it, is that it may be fortunate that former recommendations about a new one have not been carried out, as heavy expenditures in this line will not be necessary with the eradication of saloons. In fact the old one or a very modest new one can be made good enough for bootleggers and the few other persons that will persist in being law breakers, and criminals after all the county gets sobered up.

With but thirty-one (31) in the infirmary, twenty-two (22) in the Children's home, three (3) in jail, and one (1) in the station house, the citizens of Portsmouth and Scioto county are to be congratulated on their good behavior and prosperity.

KIDNEYS ACT FINE AFTER A FEW DOSES

The most effective and harmless way to cure backache and regulate out-of-order kidneys or end bladder trouble, is to take several doses of Pape's Diuretic.

You will distinctly feel that your kidneys and urinary organs are being cleaned, healed and vitalized, and all the miserable symptoms, such as backache, headache, nervousness, rheumatism and darting pains, inflamed or swollen eyelids, irritability, sleeplessness, or suppressed, painful or frequent urination (especially at night) and other distress, leaving after taking the first few doses.

The moment you suspect any kidney or urinary disorder, or rheumatism, begin taking this harmless preparation as directed by the knowledge that there is no other medicine at any price, made anywhere else in the world, which will effect so thorough and prompt a cure as a fifty-cent treatment of Pape's Diuretic, which any druggist can supply.

Your physician, pharmacist, banker or any mercantile agency will tell you that Pape, Thompson & Pape, of Cincinnati, is a large and responsible medicine concern, thoroughly worthy of your confidence.

Don't be miserable or worried another moment with a lame back or clogged, inactive kidneys or bladder misery. All this goes after you start taking Pape's Diuretic, and in a few days you will feel and know that your kidneys, liver an urinary system are healthy, clean and normal, and all danger passed.

Accept only Pape's Diuretic—fifty-cent treatment—from any drug store—anywhere in the world.

One of the Most Delightful Literary Tidbits That Ever Came From the Skillful Pen of the Author of "A Princess of Thule"

Told With a Charm of Diction That Is Irresistible

QUEEN TITA'S WAGER

BY WILLIAM BLACK

IT is a Christmas morning in Surrey. Cold, still and gray with a frail glimmer of sunshine coming through the bare trees to melt the hoarfrost on the lawn. The postman has just gone out, swinging the gate behind him. A fire burns brightly in the breakfast room, and there is silence about the house, for the children have gone off to climb Box hill before being marched to church.

The small and gentle lady known as Queen Tita, who presides over the household, walks sedately in and lifts the solitary letter that is lying on her plate. About three seconds suffice to let her run through its contents, and then she suddenly cries:

"I knew it! I said it! I told you two months ago she was only flirting with him, and now she has rejected him. And, oh, I am so glad of it! The poor boy!"

The other person in the room, who has been meekly waiting for his breakfast for half an hour, ventures to point out that there is nothing to rejoice over in the fact of a young man having been rejected by a young woman.

"If it were final, yes! If these two young folks were not certain to go and marry somebody else you might congratulate them both. But you know they will. He will marry within a year."

"I will bet you whatever you like that he doesn't," she says triumphantly.

"Whatever I like! That is a big wager. If you lose do you think you could pay? I should like, for example, to have my own way in my own house."

"If I lose you shall," says the generous creature, and the bargain is concluded.

"You remember that he promised to go with us to the Black forest?"

"Yes, and I am sure it will be a pleasant trip for him."

"Shall we go to Huferschingen?"

"I suppose so."

"Franziska is a pretty girl."

Now, you would not think that any great mischief could be done by the mere remark that Franziska was a pretty girl. Anybody who had seen Franziska Fahler, niece of the proprietor of the Goldenen Bock, in Huferschingen, would admit that in a moment. But this is nevertheless true, that our important but diminutive Queen Tita was very thoughtful at the mention of her name.

We felt some pity for the lad when we took him abroad with us, but it must be confessed that at first he was not a very desirable traveling companion. There was a gloom about him. Despite the eight months that had elapsed he professed that his old wound was still open. Tita treated him with the kindest maternal solicitude, which was a great mistake. Tonics, not sweets, are required in such cases. Yet he was very grateful, and he said with a blush that in any case he would not rail against all women because of the badness of one. Indeed, you would not have fancied he had any great grudge against womankind. There were a great many English abroad that autumn, and we met whole batches of pretty girls at every station and at every table d'hote on our route. Did he avoid them or glare at them savagely or say hard things of them? Oh, no! Quite the reverse. He was a little shy at first, and when he saw a party of distressed damsels in a station, with their bewildered father in vain attempting to make himself understood to a porter, he would assist them in a brief and businesslike manner as if it were a duty, lift his cap and then march off relieved. But by and by he began to make acquaintances in the hotel, and as he was a handsome, English looking lad, who bore a certificate of honesty in his clear gray eyes and easy gait, he was rather made much of. Nor could any fault be decently found with his appetite.

One evening, when there was a clear green and gold sky overhead and when the last rays of the sun were sliming along the hills and touching the stems of the tall pines, we drove into a narrow valley and caught sight of a large brown building of wood, with projecting eaves and quaint windows, that stood close by the forest.

"Here is my dear Inn!" cried Tita, with a great glow of delight and affection in her face. "Here is mein gutes Thal! And here is old Peter come out to see us, and there is Franziska!"

"Oh, this is Franziska, is it?" said Charlie.

Yes, this was Franziska. She was a well built, handsome girl of nineteen or twenty, with a healthy, sunburned complexion and dark hair plaited into two long tails, which were taken up and twisted into a knot behind. That you could see from a distance. But on nearer approach you found that Franziska had really fine and intelligent features and a pair of frank, clear, big brown eyes that had a very straight look about them. They were something of the eyes of a deer, indeed—wide apart, soft and apprehensive, yet looking with a certain directness and unconsciousness that overcame her natural girlish timidity. Tita simply flew at her and kissed her heartily and asked her twenty questions at once. Franziska answered in very fair English, a little slow and formal, but quite grammatical. Then she was introduced to Charlie, and she shook hands with him in a simple and unembarrassed way, and then she turned to one of the servants and gave some directions about the luggage. Finally she begged Tita to go indoors and get off her traveling attire, which was done, leaving us two outside.

"She's a very pretty girl," Charlie said carelessly. "I suppose she's sort of head cook and kitchen maid here."

The impudence of these young men is something extraordinary.

"If you wish to have your head in your hands," I remarked to him, "just you repeat that remark at dinner. Why, Franziska is no end of a swell. She has £2,000 and the half of a mill. She has a sister married to the Geheimer-Ober-Hofbaurath of Hesse-Cassel. She has visited both Paris and Munich, and she has her dresses made in Freiburg."

"But why does such an illustrious creature bury herself in this valley and in an old inn and go about barricaded?"

"Because there are folks in the world without ambition, who like to live a quiet, decent, homely life. Every girl can't marry a Geheimer-Ober-Hofbaurath. Ziska, now, is much more likely to marry the young doctor here."

"Oh, indeed, and live here all her days. She couldn't do better. Happy Franziska!"

We went indoors. It was a low, large, rambling place, with one immense room all hung round with roe deers' horns and with one lesser room fitted up with a billiard table. The inn lay a couple of hundred yards back from Huferschingen, but it had been made the headquarters of the keepers, and just outside this room were a number of pegs for them to sling their guns and bags on when they came in of an evening to have a pipe and a shopin of white wine. Ziska's uncle and aunt were both large, stout and somnolent people, very good natured and kind, but a trifle dull. Ziska really had the management of the place, and she was not slow to lend a hand if the servants were remiss in waiting on us. But that, it was understood, was done out of compliment to our small Queen Tita.

By and by we sat down to dinner, and Franziska came to see that everything was going on straight. Afterward, at Tita's wish, we went off for a last stroll in among the soft moss and under the darkness of the pines. When we returned from that brief into the forest we found the inn dark. When we entered the big room Franziska came in with candles. Then she brought some matches and also put on the table an odd little pack of cards and went out. Suddenly Charlie looks up with a business-like air and says:

"Who is that doctor fellow you were saying she is likely to marry? Shall we see him tomorrow?"

"You saw him tonight. It was he who passed us on the road with the two beagles."

"What! That little fellow with the bandy legs and the spectacles?" he cries, with a great laugh.

"Dr. Krumm has got the Iron Cross," I observe.

"That won't make his legs any the straighter."

"He was at Weissenburg."

"I suppose he got that cast in the eye there."

"He can play the zither in a way that would astonish you. He has got a little money. Franziska and he would be able to live very comfortably together."

"Franziska and that fellow!" says Charlie, and then he rises with a sulky air and proposes we should take our candles with us.

But he is not sulky very long, for Ziska, hearing our footsteps, comes to the passage and bids us a friendly good night.

"Good night, Miss Fahler," he says in rather a shamefaced way, "and I am so awfully sorry we have kept you up so late. We shan't do it again."

You would have thought by his manner that it was 2 o'clock, whereas it was only half past 11.

There was no particular reason why Dr. Krumm should marry Franziska Fahler, except that he was the most important young man in Huferschingen and she was the most important young woman. People therefore thought they would make a good match, although Franziska certainly had the most to give in the way of good looks. Dr. Krumm was a short, bandy legged, sturdy young man, with long, fair hair, a tanned complexion, light blue eyes not quite looking the same way, spectacles and a general air of industrious common sense about him, if one may use such a phrase. There was certainly little of the lover in his manner toward Ziska and as little in hers toward him. They were very good friends, though, and he called her Ziska, while she gave him his nickname of Fidelio, his real name being Fidele.

Now, on this the first morning of our stay in Huferschingen all the population had turned out at an early hour to see us start for the forest, and as the Ober-Forster had gone away to visit his parents in Bavaria Dr. Krumm was appointed to superintend the operations of the day.

At the end of the fourth drive, when we had got on nearly to luncheon time, it appeared that Charlie had killed a handsome buck, and he was so pleased with this performance that he grew friendly with Dr. Krumm, who had, indeed, given him the hauptstelle. But when, as we sat down to our sausages and bread and red wine, Charlie incidentally informed our commander in chief that during one of the drives a splendid yellow fox had come out of the underwood and stood and stared at him for three or four seconds the doctor uttered a cry of despair.

"I should have told you that," he said in English that was not quite so good as Ziska's, "if I had remembered, yes! The English will not shoot the foxes, but they are very bad for us. They kill the young deer. We are glad to shoot them, and Franziska she told me she wanted a yellow fox for the skin to make something."

Charlie got very red in the face. He had missed a chance. If he had known that Franziska wanted a yellow fox all the instinctive veneration for that animal that was in him would have gone clean out, and the fate of the animal—for Charlie was a smart shot—would have been definitely sealed.

"Are there many of them?" said he gloomily.

"No; not many. But where there is one there are generally four or five. In the next drive we may come on them, yes! I will put you in a good place, sir, and you must not think of letting him go away, for Franziska, who has waited two, three weeks and not one yellow fox not anywhere, and it is for the variety of the skin in a—a—I do not know what you call it."

"A rug, I suppose," said Charlie.

Charlie went to his post with a fixed determination to shoot anything of yellow color that came near him. His station was next to that of Dr. Krumm, but, of course, they were invisible to each other. Suddenly there was a shot fired close to Charlie. He knew it must have been the doctor. In about a minute afterward he saw some pale yellow object slowly worming its way through the ferns, and here at length he made sure he was going to get his yellow fox. But just as the animal came within fair distance it turned over, made a struggle or two and lay still. Charlie rushed along to the spit. It was, indeed, a yellow fox, shot in the head and now as dead as a doornail.

What was he to do? Let Dr. Krumm take home this prize to Franziska, after he had had such a chance in the forenoon? Never! Charlie fired a barrel into the air and then calmly awaited the coming up of the beaters and the drawing together of the sportsmen.

Dr. Krumm, being at the next station, was the first to arrive. He found Charlie standing by the side of the slain fox.

"Ha," he said, his spectacles fairly gleaming with delight, "you have shotted him! You have killed him! That is very good—that is excellent! Now you will present the skin to Miss Franziska, if you do not wish to take it to England."

"Oh, no!" said Charlie, with a lordly indifference. "I don't care about it. Franziska may have it."

Charlie pulled me aside and said, with a solemn wink:

"Can you keep a secret?"

"My wife and I can keep a secret. I am not allowed to have any for myself."

"Listen," said the unabashed young man. "Krumm shot that fox. Mind you don't say a word. I must have the skin to present to Franziska."

I said nothing, of course, and til the evening a trap came for us, and we drove back to Huferschingen.

Tita clapped her hands with delight, for Charlie was a favorite of hers, and now he was returning like a hero, with a sprig of fir in his cap to show that he had killed a buck.

"And here, Miss Franziska," he said quite gayly—"here is a yellow fox for you. I was told that you wanted the skin of one."

Franziska fairly blushed for pleasure—not that the skin of a fox was very valuable to her, but that the compliment was so open and marked. She came forward, in German fashion, and rather shyly shook hands with him in token of her thanks.

The heartbroken boy was in very good spirits at dinner. He was inclined to wink. Tita, on the contrary, maintained an impressive dignity of demeanor, and when Franziska's name happened to be mentioned she spoke of the young girl as her very particular friend, as though she would dare Charlie to attempt a flirtation with one who held that honor. But the young man was either blind or reckless or acting a part for mere mischief. He pointed the finger of scorn at Dr. Krumm. He asked if he should bring her a yellow fox next day. He declared he wished he could spend the remainder of his life in a Black forest inn, with a napkin over his arm, serving chopins.

When Tita and I went upstairs at night the small and gentle creature was grievously perplexed.

"I cannot make it out," she said. "He is quite changed. What is the matter with him? We are to be here three weeks, and he talks of flirting with poor Franziska. Oh, I never meant that!"

"But what did you mean?" I asked, with some innocent wonder.

Tita hangs down her head, and there is an end to that conversation, but one of us, at least, has some recollection of a Christmas wager.

Charlie was not in such good spirits next morning. He was standing outside the inn, in the sweet, resinous scented air, watching Franziska coming and going, with her bright face touched by the early sunlight and her frank and honest eyes lit up by a kindly look when she passed us. His conscience began to smite him for claiming that fox.

We spent the day in fishing a stream some few miles distant from Huferschingen, and Franziska accompanied us. What need to tell of our success with the trout and the grayling or of the beautiful weather or of the attentive and humble manner in which the unfortunate youth addressed Franziska from time to time?

In the evening we drove back to Huferschingen. It was a still and beautiful evening, with the silence of the twilight falling over the lonely valleys and the miles upon miles of darkening pines. When we got out to Huferschingen the stars were out over the dark stretches of the forest, and the windows of the quaint old inn were burning brightly.

"And have you enjoyed the amusement of the day?" says Miss Fahler, rather shyly, to a certain young man who is emptying his creel of fish. He drops the basket to turn round and look at her face and say earnestly:

"I have never spent so delightful a day, but it wasn't the fishing."

Things were becoming serious.

And next morning Charlie got hold of Tita and said to her in rather a shamefaced way:

"What am I to do about that fox? It was only a joke, you know, but if Miss Fahler gets to hear of it she'll think it was rather shabby."

Seated on the bank where we had left them.

It was always Miss Fahler now. A couple of days before it was Franziska.

"For my part," says Tita, "I can't understand why you did it. What honor is there in shooting a fox?"

"But I wanted to give the skin to her."

It was "her" by this time.

"Well, I think the best thing you can do is to go and tell her all about it and also to go and apologize to Dr. Krumm."

Charlie started.

"I will go and tell her, certainly, but as for apologizing to Krumm, that is absurd!"

By and by Franziska, or, rather, Miss Fahler, came out of the small garden and round by the front of the house.

"Oh, Miss Fahler," says Charlie suddenly, and with that she stops and blushes slightly, "I've got something to say to you. I am going to make a confession. Don't be frightened. It's only about a fox—the fox that was brought home the day before yesterday. Dr. Krumm shot that."

"Indeed," says Franziska, quite innocently, "I thought you shot it."

"Well, I let them imagine so. It was only a joke."

"But it is of no matter. There are many yellow foxes. Dr. Krumm can shoot them at another time. He is always here. Perhaps you will shoot one before you go."

With that Franziska passed into the house, carrying her fruit with her. Charlie was left to revolve her words in his mind. Dr. Krumm could shoot foxes when he chose. He was always here. He, Charlie, on the contrary, had to go away in little more than a fortnight. There was no Franziska in England; no pleasant driving through great pine woods in the gathering twilight; no shooting of yellow foxes, to be brought home in triumph and presented to a beautiful and grateful young woman. Charlie walked along the white road and overtook Tita, who had just sat down on a little camp stool and got out the materials for taking a water color sketch of the Huferschingen valley.

"I suppose I shan't interrupt your painting by talking to you?" he says.

"Oh, dear, no," is the reply, and then he begins in a somewhat hesitating way to ask indirect questions and drop hints and fish for answers, just as if this small creature, who was busy with her sepias and olive greens, did not see through all this transparent cunning.

At last she said to him frankly:

"You want me to tell you whether Franziska would make a good wife for you. She would make a good wife for any man, but, dear me, how can I believe you are in earnest? You have only known her three days. Franziska is an excellent girl, as I have told you often—frank, kind, well educated and unselfish. But you cannot have fallen in love with her in three days?"

"Why not?" says this blunt spoken young man.

"Because it is ridiculous. If I meddle in the affair I should probably find you had given up the fancy in another three days, or if you did marry her and took her to England you would get to hate me because I alone should know that you had married the niece of an innkeeper."

"Well, I like that," says he, with a flush in his face. "Do you think I should care two straws whether my friends knew I had married the niece of an innkeeper? I should show them Franziska. Wouldn't that be enough? An innkeeper's niece! I wish the world had more of 'em, if they're like Franziska."

"And besides," continued Tita, "have you any notion as to how Franziska herself would probably take this mad proposal?"

"No," says the young man humbly, "I wanted you to try and find out what she thought about me."

"Give me your hand, Charlie," says Tita, with a sudden burst of kindness. "I'll do what I can for you, for I know she's a good girl, and she will make a good wife to the man who marries her. I can safely tell you this, that Franziska likes you very well."

He suddenly jumps up, and there is a great blush on his face.

"Has she said so?" he asks eagerly.

"Oh, yes, in a way. She thinks you are good natured. She likes the English generally. She asked me if that ring you wear was an engagement ring."

"I must go and tell her directly that it is not," said he, and he might probably have gone off at once had not Tita restrained him.

"You must be a great deal more cautious than that if you wish to carry off Franziska some day or other. But if you like, Charlie, I will say something to her that will give her a hint, and if she cares for you at all before you go away she won't forget you. I wish I was as sure of you as I am of her."

"Oh, I can answer for myself," says the young man, with a becoming bashfulness.

One day a registered letter came for Charlie. He seized it, carried it to a window and then called Tita to him. Why need he have made any secret about it? It was nothing but a ring—a plain hoop with a row of rubies.

"Do you think she would take this thing?" he said in a low voice.

"How can I tell?"

The young man blushed and stammered and said:

"I don't want you to ask her to take the ring, but to get to know whether she would accept any present from me. And I would ask her myself plainly, only you have been frightening me so much about being in a hurry. And what am I to do? Three days hence we start."

Tita looked down, with a smile, and said, rather timidly:

"I think if I were you I would speak to her myself—but very gently."

We went off that morning to a little lake some dozen miles off to try for a jack or two. Franziska was with us. Charlie was a little grave and could only reply to Tita's fun with an effort. Franziska was mostly anxious about the fishing and hoped that we might not go so far to find nothing.

We found few fish anyhow. At length Charlie proposed that he should go ashore and look out for a picturesque site for our picnic, and he hinted that perhaps Miss Franziska might also like a short walk to relieve the monotony of the sailing. Miss Franziska said she would be very pleased to do that. We ran them in among the rushes and put them ashore and then once more started on our laborious career.

Tita laid down her book. She was a little anxious. Sometimes you could see Charlie and Franziska on the path by the side of the lake. At other times the thick trees by the water's side hid them.

The solitary oar dipped in the lake; the boat glided along the shores. Tita took up her book again. The space of time that passed may be inferred from the fact that, merely as an incident to it, we managed to catch a chub of four pounds. When the excitement over this event had passed, Tita said:

"We must go back to them. What do they mean by not coming on and telling us? It is most silly of them."

We went back by the same side of the lake, and we found both Franziska and her companion seated on the bank at the precise spot where we had left them. They said it was the best place for the picnic. They asked for the hamper in a businesslike way. They pretended they had searched the shores of the lake for miles.

And while Tita and Franziska are unpacking the things and laying the white cloth smoothly on the grass and pulling out the bottles for Charlie to cool in the lake I observe that the younger of the two ladies rather endeavors to keep her left hand out of sight. I say to her:

"Franziska, what is the matter with your left hand?"

"Leave Franziska's left hand alone," says Tita severely.

"My dear," I reply humbly, "I am afraid Franziska has hurt her left hand."

At this moment Charlie, having stuck the bottles among the reeds, comes back, and, hearing our talk, he says in a loud and audacious way:

"Oh, do you mean the ring? It's a pretty little thing I had about me, and Franziska has been good enough to accept it. You can show it to them, Franziska."

Of course he had it about him. Young men always do carry a stock of ruby rings with them when they go fishing to put in the noses of the fish. I have observed it frequently.

Franziska looks timidly at Tita, and then she raises her hand that trembles a little. She is about to take the ring off to show it to us when Charlie interposes:

"You needn't take it off, Franziska."

And with that, somehow, the girl slips away from among us, and Tita is with her, and we don't get a glimpse of either of them until the solitude resounds with our cries for luncheon.

In due time Charlie returned to London and to Surrey with us in very good spirits. He used to come down very often to see us, and one evening at dinner he disclosed the fact that he was going over to the Black forest in the following week, although the November nights were chill just then.

"And how long do you remain?"

"A month," he says.

"Madam," I say to the small lady at the other end of the table, "a month from now will bring us to the 4th of December. You have lost the bet you made last Christmas morning. When will it please you to resign your authority?"

"Oh, bother the bet," says this unscrupulous person.

"But what do you mean?" says Charlie.

"Why," I say to him, "she laid a wager last Christmas day that you would not be married within a year. And now you say you mean to bring Franziska over on the 4th of December next. Isn't it so?"

"Oh, no," he says, "we don't get married till the spring!"

You should have heard the burst of low, delightful laughter with which Queen Tita welcomed this announcement. She had won her wager.

BELL CO. IN CONTROL OF WESTERN UNION

New York, Nov. 16.—The control of the Western Union Telegraph Co., passed today to the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and a long step was taken towards merging the telephone and telegraph companies into a corporation with a capitalization of nearly a billion of dollars. The officials of the Postal Telegraph company stated that their company would remain on an independent basis.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 16.—The American Telephone and Telegraph Company secured a substantial amount of the minority stock of the Western Union Telegraph company and sufficient voting rights of other stock to give the telephone company the control of the telegraph corporation according to the announcement made here today.

Splendid Sermon By Rev. J. M. Gordon

A very strong, convincing and pleasing sermon was that preached by Rev. J. M. Gordon in the Christian church last night. The theme was "Salvation." The speaker defined salvation as "spiritual health" and showed that the two things upon which spiritual health depends are worship and service. The difference between these was forcibly and eloquently illustrated. Those who heard the sermon pronounce it a masterpiece. Mr. Gordon preaches each evening at half past seven.

Rev. J. M. Gordon, the evangelist, now preaching in the Christian church revival, was called to his home in Wilmington, O., this morning to conduct a funeral. He left on the N. & W. at 3:45 and expects to return at 7:30 in time to preach this evening.

SAW BALLOON PASS OVER THE CITY

Did you see the balloon that passed over the city, early Tuesday morning, traveling in a northeasterly direction? Many citizens declare they saw it and as they have always borne the reputation for truth and veracity they probably know what they are talking about. It so happened that the balloon was seen about 6:30 o'clock and as most people are abed at this time the question cannot be successfully refuted.

BARBER SHAW WAS LOCKED UP

A letter that he had written to his wife was the cause of the appearance of C. M. Shaw, a North Chillicothe street barber, in police court, Monday evening, and incidentally a night in the city jail.

Shaw, according to his wife, from whom he is separated and who was ofrmerly Mrs. Nate Arnold, has threatened to kill her and she produced a letter to that effect. In it he stated that unless she returned to him it would be a case of life or death. Mrs. Shaw stated that he carried a black jack and a big revolver around with him and that she was in constant fear he would do her harm. The mayor looked into the charges and ordered Shaw dismissed. It looked to the officials that Shaw was deeply in love with his wife and that he while he had possibly been indiscreet in his method of winning her back, nevertheless he had tried to affect a reconciliation in his own peculiar way and really meant no harm.

SOCIAL NEWS

Mrs. Susan Galford of Columbus has returned home at the conclusion of a visit to her son officer Dave Galford.

Concerning the coming marriage of a former Portsmouth girl, Tuesday's Irontonian said:

It is with pleasure that the Irontonian announces this morning the wedding of Mr. Harry W. Mountain and Miss Amelia Frost, two of Ironton's best known, most estimable and most popular young folks. The ceremony will be performed during the Holidays at Christ Episcopal church. Rev. W. H. Hampton, the rector of the church, will perform the ceremony. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Mountain will leave for an extended trip. Returning home they will immediately take up their residence in the Mountain home in the corner of Sixth and Jefferson streets.

Miss Frost is the only daughter of Professor and Mrs. Frost of north Fifth street, and without extending the imagination one whit it can be said that she is truly one of Ironton's fairest and most accomplished daughters. She is a member of Ironton's younger social set and one of its most popular members. Of her accomplishments which are many varied she perhaps excels in music, having devoted many years of study to acquiring knowledge. She is a pupil of her father and she in turn has imparted her knowledge to many others. Miss Frost is also an elocutionist of rare ability and at private recitals has delighted her friends time and again. It is not necessary to elaborate on Miss Frost's personality and charm of manner. She is a perfect blonde and as gracious as she is beautiful. Possessed of a native dignity, and a happy charming disposition she is certainly an ideal bride.

Mr. Mountain is perhaps as well known as any man in Ironton and is a former mayor of this city. He is a member of the firm of the Ironton Construction company and is regarded as one of Ironton's most progressive and popular business men. He happily combines all the elements necessary to married life. Mr. Mountain is a splendid young man, sturdy in character, upright honorable, clean and straight forward and no town man in the city enjoys a greater measure of respect and esteem than he.

Baucus Case Not Heard

Judge Blair had no case to hear at Ironton Tuesday and was ready to hold a session here in the afternoon but no attorneys appeared at the court house with any matters to litigate.

The judge was ready to hear the Baucus-Davidson injunction suit at this time. Owing to the absence of Baucus' attorney, Arthur H. Bannon the case could not be heard.

TO LOCATE AT HARRISONVILLE

Dr. W. T. Jessee of New Boston has purchased the fine residence property of J. J. Vangorder at Harrisonville and expects to move there to practice his profession. Mr. Vangorder is now living in the city and is employed here as a postoffice clerk.

It is understood that Dr. Mecann of Harrisonville has practically closed a deal to move to Waverly to give his children better educational facilities. In the plan of Dr. Jessee to move to Harrisonville, the village is assured of having an experienced practicioner to replace the doctor who is moving away.

Wed 7 Months, Wants Divorce

Exactly seven months from the date of their marriage on April 9, 1909, a separation took place between Frank Kanouse, well known railroad blacksmith, and his wife, Juna Dobbins Kanouse. On Tuesday she entered suit for divorce and alimony through Attorney Noth J. Dever. She alleges cruelty and non support. The couple were married in Columbus and news of the match came as a surprise to their friends here.

In her petition Mrs. Kanouse alleges that on Nov. 9 her husband struck, and otherwise mistreated her and since then she has lived apart from him. She further says that he had previously abused her, and contributed little to her support so that she was obliged to maintain herself by her own labors and keeping boarders.

Mrs. Kanouse alleged that her husband had the sum of $325 on deposit with the Ohio Savings and Loan Association at Columbus and she asks the court to restrain her husband from using any part of this money until the case is heard. In the absence of Judge Blair this temporary restraining order was issued by Probate Judge Beatty. She asks for divorce and suitable alimony.

'VAL' NEWMAN PASSES AWAY

Valentine Newman died at Ironton Monday afternoon. He was born in Bavaria, March 19, 1834, coming to America with his parents in 1846. He resided in Ironton from 1859 up until his death. He was made a Mason at Louisa, Ky., when he was 21 years of age and was an active member for 51 years. He also joined Ironton lodge of Odd Fellows July 25, 1559 and was the oldest living Odd Fellow in Ohio at the time of his death. He was also a charter member of the Ironton lodge of Elks. He was an active Democrat and in 1877 he ran for State Senator in his district.
